Growers fight frost

Bill Lambert, left, and Carlton Stewart, (top photo) both peach growers in the Crowley's Ridge between Malden and Campbell take a look at one of 10 helicopters that tried to stir up cold air that threatened to frost peach blossoms in more than 3,000 acres of orchards Thursday night. Smudge pots were used in some orchards to try to keep the chill off the delicate blossoms (right photo).

Kissinger ready for Moscow trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger conferred with President Nixon today on his upcoming trip to Moscow, where he says he will seek a breakthrough that could produce a concrete treaty to limit nuclear weapons by the end of 1974.

Kissinger came to Nixon's Oval Office a day after he told a news conference that prospects are reasonably good for the breakthrough. But he also cautioned that relations between the two powers are passing through a difficult period.

The secretary, who leaves this weekend, said rapid improvement of nuclear weapons has slowed progress on a treaty. Congress' unwillingness to grant trade benefits to the Soviet Union and friction in the Middle East also contribute to the difficulty, he said.

And yet, Kissinger absolved Moscow of blame for Syrian clashes with Israel in the Golan Heights and said: "Both of us have an obligation to contribute to peace and both of us are exchanging ideas on the subject."

The United States and Soviet Union signed their first nuclear weapons agreement in 1972, restricting defensive systems and putting temporary limits on some offensive weapons.

The current second round of SALT talks involves an exchange of technical information, but also a stalemate in the negotiating process, Kissinger said.

"Then a point is reached ... where the two sides have to agree on what it is they are trying to accomplish. And after that there has to be the hard negotiation on giving concrete content to this conceptual breakthrough," he said.

"I would expect that if there is a SALT agreement this year, it will have an adequate concreteness, and it will not be simply general principles," Kissinger said.

House okays $29 million emergency funding bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A $29 million emergency appropriations bill, the subject of three days of bargaining between House and Senate conferees, was approved by the House Thursday and sent to the Senate.

Members of the House and Senate appropriations committees had spent the time hammering out differences between House and Senate versions of the measure.

If approved by the Senate it will go to the governor.

In its current form it provides $40,000 to begin transfer of the Independence Residence Center of Central Missouri State University at Warrensburg to the University of Missouri.

Also authorized is $941,500 in emergency funding for the legislature for the remainder of the current fiscal year.

That provision was questioned by Minority Floor Leader Robert Snyder of Kirkwood who asked House Appropriations Committee Chairman James Russell, D-Florissant, why the emergency appropriation for the House was needed since $3.4 million has been appropriated to fund the House.

"We've run short," Russell replied.

Snyder persisted, saying he felt the people had a right to know why the legislature was spending more money.

Russell cited inflation with increasing costs for salaries, postage and other items.

Given final approval by the House and sent to the Senate was a combination measure providing aid to certain hospitals at a rate of one-third the deficit and authorizing a mental retardation diagnosis and treatment program.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond favors the mental retardation program but opposes hospital aid. He vetoed last year a measure providing subsidies at 10 per cent of operating deficits for hospitals.

Also given final approval by the House were bills to:

—Add two judges to the St. Louis County Circuit Court.

—Require the Highway Patrol to initiate a program to mark property in an attempt to prevent thefts. Sale of marked merchandise would be prohibited without a bill of sale from the owner.

—Provide a pay increase for magistrate court clerks.

—Make procedural changes for voter registration.

Man talks himself into jail sentence

Larry W. Taylor of Oran talked himself into a 24-hour jail sentence and a $50 fine Thursday night in City Court when he reportedly became beligerent with Judge Jim Sickle.

Taylor was appearing in court on speeding charges, but ended up with a contempt of court citation.

Police officers who were present in the courtroom said Taylor was asked if he pleaded guilty or not guilty and he replied that he was pleading guilty because he thought Sickle had already made up his mind on how to rule on his case.

The officers said Sickle told him he should not have said what he did and gave Taylor a short lecture on how to behave in a courtroom. Sickle again asked Taylor how he pleaded. Taylor made a reply similar to his first one. Police said his remarks were sprinkled with obscenities.

Sickle then issued the contempt of court citation and ordered Taylor to jail.

The speeding charges were continued until next week.

Fines levied Thursday include Melvin C. Young, 1707 Kentucky, driving while intoxicated, $210; Charlotte Lynn Dacus, 404 Dacus, driving while intoxicated, $110; Bill Carlos Taylor of Scott City, petit larceny, $140.

Rolwing of Charleston, speeding, $24; Mary Ellen Roland, 403 Missouri, speeding, $26, no city sticker, $11.

Leroy King, Route Four, speeding, $15; Gary Lee Mize, 515 Clayton, speeding, $30; Roy William Alsup, Virginia Pines Apartments, speeding, $20; Patricia Jean Clayton, 314 Marion, speeding, $20; Larry Russell Evans, 414 Sunset, peace disturbance, $20; Kim Karla Dye, 819 Ladue, allowing dog to run loose, $15.

GREENVILLE — Thurman Loyd Jr., 39, of St. Louis has been charged by Wayne County authorities with manslaughter in connection with a fatal accident which caused the death of a 5 - year - old girl Tuesday one mile south of Coldwater on Highway 67.

Prior to the filing of the manslaughter charge, Lloyd had been held as a driving while intoxicated suspect. Results of a blood test have not been revealed.

Cheri Springer of Minneapolis, Minn., was killed Tuesday morning when the southbound car in which she was riding was struck head on. The accident occurred when a northbound pickup truck driven by Lloyd attempted to pass another vehicle and struck a car driven by Lee Taylor Jester, 29, of Hugo, Minn.

Lloyd, formerly of Kennett, had been released Sunday afternoon from the Dunklin County jail after paying the balance of a fine on a driving while intoxicated conviction.

Lloyd is being held in the Wayne County jail.

'Copters help fight peach freeze

As Bootheel temperatures dropped well below freezing Thursday night, peach growers in the Dexter and Campbell areas used helicopters and smudge pots in an attempt to save blooms from being killed by frost.

Helicopters were first used by some area growers Saturday night when the temperature dropped as low as 24 degrees in the orchards near Campbell.

Helicopters are used to circulate the air in an attempt to keep frost from settling on the blooms. Peach trees in the area are now in full bloom which means frost could be disastrous to this year's crop.

George Lovins owner of C&L Orchard near Dexter said two helicopters were used Thursday night, one at each of two orchards. Lovins has about 100 acres in the two orchards, one of which is located in Dexter and the other northwest of Bloomfield.

Lovins said he thinks the helicopters may have kept enough frost off the blooms to protect future fruit growth. He recorded temperatures as low as 16 degrees last night, as well as temperatures ranging from 22 to 28 degrees.

The helicopters, which came from North Airways of Rolla, a frost control team, were on the ground today while peach growers waited to see if it would be necessary for them to fly again tonight

Helicopters and smudge pots also were used in the Crowley Ridge area west of Malden, where 10 to 15 of the approximately 25 growers in the area spent Thursday night working in the orchards trying to protect their trees from frost.

Eight helicopters were flying over orchards in that area.

Carlton Stewart, one of the major peach growers in that area and president of the National Peach Council, said there are about 25 growers and 3,000 acres of trees in that area. Stewart Fruit Co., Inc. has 400 acres of peach trees, 250 acres of which are at the fruit- bearing age.

Helicopters from Branson, Rolla, St. Louis, Memphis, Tenn., and Jonesboro and Paragould, Ark., began flying over the crops about 11 p.m. Thursday when temperatures began dropping into the low 20s.

They kept air circulating until about 6 or 7 a.m. today. Stewart explained that by using helicopters, temperatures in the peach orchards can be raised three to five degrees.

Helicopters were acquired primarily through agricultural flight services in various communities, Stewart explained.

The forecast tonight calls for winds which could be unfavorable to the use of helicopters, or could make them unnecessary because of the lessened frost factor. Stewart said the growers do expect to have helicopters in the air again Saturday night.

He explained that growers in the area do not yet know if, or to what extent, crops were damaged by any frost that may have settled

Man found shot to death

Henry Jack Kent, 58, of Route Three was found dead of a bullet wound in his home at 5:30 p.m. Thursday by his wife, Mrs. Velma Kent, after he apparently shot himself behind the right ear with a .22 - caliber single-shot rifle, Scott County Coroner Gene Nunnelee said today.

According to Nunnelee, Mrs. Kent found the body lying on one side across a pillow on the bed when she returned home from visiting her mother. He had been dead approximately two hours.

Kent reportedly had been despondent because of ill health.

Nunnelee said no inquest will be held.

Born Oct. 15, 1915 in Arkansas, he was the son of the late George and Maggie Ray Kent and had moved to the area from Houston, Tex., where he was employed in the park department before retirement.

On March 30, 1972, he married Velma Frances Johnson, who survives.

Also surviving is one son, Donald Lee Kent of Houston, Tex. one daughter, Mrs. Dora Mae Parker of Pasadena, Tex.; one stepson, Gary Johnson of Tacoma, Wash. one stepdaughter, Mrs. Larry Ankrom of Springfield; and five grandchildren.

The body was removed today from Nunnelee Funeral Chapel and taken to Forest Park Chapel in Houston, where services are scheduled on Saturday.

Burial will be in Forest Park Cemetery in Houston.

She was taken to the Farmington hospital.

DAEOC gets $133,192

WASHINGTON, D. C. — U. S. Representative Bill D. Burlison (D.-Mo.) today announced that the Department of Labor has awarded a grant to the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation in Portageville, Mo. in the amount of $133,192.

Burlison explained that these funds will be utilized to aid 56 enrollees in an Operation Mainstream program. Mainstream gives work to older persons who have suffered chronic unemployment, he added.

The Congressman noted that the 10th District counties sharing in this grant are Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Stoddard and Scott.

Clerk says 8,500 registered voters not enough

NEW MADRID — Approximately 8,500 residents of New Madrid County are now registered to vote and while that number exceeds the 8,278 voters who cast ballots in the 1972 governor's race, County Clerk Jesse H. Wilkins states it is still far short of the number that could and should register.

Wilkins indicated that here-to-fore no one took the time to ascertain the number of residents that could have participated in an election --- it was merely guesswork.

After determining the facts from the 1970 census report, Wilkins said he was quite surprised that the report revealed there are 13,573 residents in this county over the age of 21, plus 956 more are over 18 years and under 21 years, who can now qualify as voters, making a possible total of 14,529 voters in the county, provided they are registered.

The remaining 8,891 residents -- making up the population figure of 23,420-- are under 18 years of age and inelgible to participate in elections.

Wilkins said his office has made an earnest effort to register the residents and that the county had gone to considerable expense to make a registration crew available for registration in each community.

Despite the organizational help in the various cities and communities, some pleading and other persuasive actions, Wilkins said public apathy tends to show a lack of interest, especially when it is noted that some 41 per cent of the people are not registered.

"Future elections will perhaps follow the pattern of the past, with only around 8,000 of the population interested enough to express their opinion one way or another," predicted the county clerk, who is completing 16 years in that office.

"It would seem that with all the candidates in the city elections drumming up interest, the public's concern over inflation price controls or lack of controls, Watergate, welfare programs, taxation and loopholes, that the public would rush to register so they may express their desires through their favorite candidates and to serve their individual interests, but such interests have not as yet developed," he said.

"Apparently 41 per cent of the population has never participated in past elections and will not in the future, and if this be the case then there is really no point in registering those who refuse to vote. One thing for sure, if you are not registered you are not going to be able to vote," Wilkins concluded.

THE QUIET REVOLUTION

Following President Nixon's recent State of the Union address, a prominent black mayor said the President had "declared for all the world to see that black people are officially non-persons, not even to be addressed in a statement for the entire nation."

Mayor Richard Hatcher of Gary, Indiana, added that Mr. Nixon "spoke for about an hour and did not mention equal opportunity."

Well, so the President didn't refer specifically to black people in the address. Neither did he refer to white, red, yellow or purple people. The point is that he was addressing us as one union, not as special interest groups within that union. Issues affecting such groups, including blacks, were dealth with in the considerably longer written message accompanying the speech and given to members of Congress and the press.

At any rate, Mayor Hatcher's contention raises an interesting question: what happened to that black revolution that so recently was threatening to tear apart the social fabric of our nation? The answer is that the revolution is continuing quietly and very effectively where it really counts — the ballot box.

A total of 363 more blacks won political office in the South alone during last year's off-year elections, according to the nonpartisan Voter Education Project. There are now more than 1,000 elected blacks serving in public office throughout the South. And, in addition to Hatcher, they are joined by such prominent black officials in the North as the mayors of Los Angeles and Newark.

We won't argue that today every American has an equal opportunity for success. However, we will argue that during President Nixon's term of office, giant strides have been made in this direction. Federal outlays for civil rights enforcement, for example, have risen from $75 million in 1969 to $521 million in 1974.

Blacks and other minority groups, we believe, have made significant progress in recent years toward sharing fully in the American Dream. Perhaps that is one reason why this year's college students are streaking instead of rioting.

American taxpayers have paid $116 million in the last six years to make good on defaulting students under the federal loan program. But that is just the tip of the iceburg. Officials of the U. S. Office of Education expect a $31 - million deficit in the coming year and ever-greater losses in the futre. With Congress expected to "liberalize" the loan program in the months ahead, even that figure could skyrocket.

And speaking of this election year, there are two things Congress could do, says a Sikeston reader, that would re-elect them all.

"One is put the old holidays back where they found them, and the second is, cancel year- round daylight saving time."

THE GOVERNMENT EXPLOSION

It is fashionable to blame today's obvious and widespread public disenchantment with government in the United States on the "Watergate scandal." In fact, the trend toward a sharp decline in public confidence in government began well before "Watergate" and is the result of cumulative experience with evergrowing spending and ever- mounting problems. Our people are learning that government intervention does not solve most problems, but instead compounds them.

The increase in the cost and activity of government in the life and work of our country within recent memory is staggering, even frightening. In 1929, for example, the entire federal budget totalled less than $3 billion This year's budget is $300 billion, a 10,000 per cent increase. From 1929 to 1973, government grew 130 times as fast as population.

Even when inflation is fully taken into account, the figures remain appalling. In 1929 the federal government took 2.5 per cent of our Gross National Product while state and local government took an additional 7.4 per cent, a combined total for all government of about 10 cents on every dollar earned. Now the federal government takes 21 per cent of our Gross National Product and, when the cost of state and local government is added, one dollar in every three earned (32.2 per cent) goes to government.

What have we gained from all this? A nation confused, unsure of itslef, beset by troubles of every kind. The more tax money government spends, the worse conditions seem to become. It's time to start turning money back to the people so that they can solve their own problems.

IT'S YOUR TAXES THEY'RE SPENDING

$4,362

The price of your new car? It may be, but it's also what your family may have to pay to run the Federal Government next year.

The average taxpayer is probably unable to comprehend the size of the proposed $304.4 billion 1975 Federal Budget. But tell this same taxpayer such spending will cost his family -- and every household in the country -- $4,362 and this puts government spending in a different perspective.

The average American household's share in the 1975 Budget outlays is more than double the same cost 10 years earlier, a jump of 108 per cent to be exact. The largest share of this, $1,434, will be needed to provide income for other persons. This represents a 215 per cent rise during the decade.

Another growing facet of the Federal Budget is spending for Health Care, which is up 1,157 per cent in 10 years.

Not all categories of federal spending have increased. In fact, one of the most popular programs of the '60s, Space Research, now costs the average household $47 while in 1965 it came to $90.

One category that exists today more than absorbs the decline in Space Research. That is General Revenue Sharing, now amounting to $88 a year for the average household.

Some of the most expensive categories in the average family's $4,362 share of the proposed budget outlays -- and their changes over 10 years -- are:

Income Security — FY 1975 - $1,434; FY 1965 - $455. Growth: 215% plus.

National Defense — FY 1975 - $1,257, FY 1965 - $877. Growth: 43% plus.

Interest (Debt) — FY 1975 - $417, FY 1965 - $183. Growth: 128% plus

Health — FY 1975 - $377; FY 1965 - $30. Growth 1,157% plus

General Govt. — FY 1975 - $97; FY 1965 - $38. Growth: 155% plus

The last item shows how much even the cost of spending all this money keeps going up -- from $38 to $97 per family in 10 years.

EVEN ARAB OIL MIGHT NOT BE ENOUGH

Americans have been led to believe that if Arabian oil should again start flowing to the United States, our energy troubles would be over for a while.

If their demands are met, the Arab nations have said they would increase oil production from 7.5 million barrels a day to 20 million barrels.

From secret reports now made public, it appears that they can't produce more than 7.5 million barrels a day for a long time to come. The charge is made that the big American oil companies who developed the Arabian oil feidls have been draining the developed fields as fast as possible to get out as much oil as possible before the Arabian governments take over ownership and management of all oil fields as anticipated. Meantime, they have not developed the other potential oil fields in those nations. The result of this greed policy of the oil companies is that the Arabs can't produce what they promise, no matter how much they might want to do so.

A GREAT MAN

This week we born the passing of a great man. Charles Brasher was the personification of the Missouri State Chest Hospital.

Because he was once a patient at the then Sanatorium, he was far more sympathetic to the needs of the victims of tuberculosis and other lung diseases than the ordinary doctor.

He could appreciate the restorative value of a bouquet of fresh flowers at the bedside of someone facing a long hospital stay or the morale booster of a letter to loved ones written by a volunteer worker. Programs of this nature were kept, at his insistence, even though some considered them luxuries.

It was his foresight several years ago which instigated the change from a sanatorium to a hospital for the treatment of all lung and chest conditions. The change meant new life for the hospital at a time when many tuberculosis hospitals in the country were being closed down. Dr. Brasher envisioned the facility as eventually becoming a great cancer treatment center.

Dr. Brasher conquered both tuberculosis and alcoholism -- either of which have stopped an ordinary person -- to become superintendent and medical director of one of the most famous lung disease centers in the United States.

His philosophy of life was two-fold; faith in God, and the ability to laugh at oneself.

Dr. Brasher was scheduled for retirement in April. His co-workers and supporters had planned to honor him in several ways in return for the praise and honor which he strove to bestow upon them over the years.

We wonder whether Dr. Brasher would have been happy in retirement, for he was a doer. We suspect that rest and relaxation would have been a bore to him.

Dr. Brasher died with his boots on. That is how we shall always remember him.

We continue to hear how federal aid to education keeps interfering with local authorities by saying "do this or we'll take away your funds."

Title IX of the Education Amendments Act of 1972 prohibits sex discrimination for any educational program or activity receiving federal financial assistance.

Says the Wall Street Journal, "To the best of anyone's knowledge, no college sports programs receive federal funds. Moreover, at no time during congressional debate over the act was there any mention that its provisions applied to college athetics."

But, no matter the intent and purpose of the legislation, apparently the Department of Health, Welfare and Education, having their own interpretation, is busily concocting proposals to withhold funds from colleges that do not spend sports money equally on male and female activities.

Although there have been no edicts delivered, HEW has found that unnecessary in the past. The mere threat of withdrawing funds can change up most any old tradition. In fact, some schools are already convinced that HEW is prepared to take away all federal funds from any school that does not spend identical numbers of dollars on boy and girl intercollegiate, club and intramural athletics. Their fears could be well-founded.

It's difficult to imagine how it's possible to equalize football, for instance. If some other sport more suitable to women is to be promoted so that it would attract the crowds and revenues male football gets, what is it to be?

Borrowing from football's revenues to support women's sports would not only curtail football at many colleges, it could end it in others. Also, says the Journal, it could wipe out excess revenues some schools use to support less popular sports, such as tennis and golf, that both men and women play.

Even though the threat from HEW officials is just a whisper, it could do a lot of damage even if Congress would never permit exceeding its intent. But Congress has a habit of passing legislation, letting bureaucracy take over to administrate and then forgetting the whole thing.

SAFETY DISREGARDED HAULING MIGRANT WORKERS?

Tragic motor accidents involving large numbers of unorganized farm workers constitute one important reason why the efforts of the United Farm Workers union must succeed. In addition to fair wages and adequate fringe benefits, there is a need for strict safety standards to protect farm workers, both on the job and in transit to and from the fields.

Nineteen farm workers were killed and 28 others injured on Jan. 15 when a farm labor bus transporting them from Mexicali, Mexico, to a farm near Blythe, Calif., failed to negotiate a curve and turned over into a drainage ditch. According to a spokesman for the California Highway, the bodies were "stacked up like dominoes against each other toward the front of the bus."

At a funeral mass for the 19 dead workers, Cesar Chavez, president of the United Farm Workers, expressed both sorrow and anger over the tragedy and blamed it on "the greed of the big growers who do not care about the safety of the workers and who expose them to grave dangers when they transport them in wheeled coffins to the fields."

He noted that farm workers have suffered too many accidents "in the fields, on trucks, under machines, in buses." The criminal callousness of the big growers, Chavez said, is due to "a farm labor system that treats workers like agricultural implements — not human beings."

In Florida as well as in California, recent accidents bear out the truth of Chavez's statement. Sugar cane cutters brought in from Jamaica to work cane fields owned by the Gulf and Western Products Company near West Palm Beach have been involved in serious accidents on two occasions during the past three months. Thirty-six Jamaicans were injured in an accident near Belle Glade on Dec. 16; then, on Jan. 7, a seatless and windowless van packed with an estimated 130 Jamaican workers overturned in a ditch on the same road, killing one worker and injuring 86 others.

Workmen's compensation was not made available to the injured; not did the state police file charges against Gulf and Western, since the accidents occurred on a private road owned by the huge agricultural conglomerate. Moreover, Florida's Highway Patrol considered Gulf and Western exempt from the safety standards of the state's Migratory Carriers Law, which does not require the same standards for employers hauling their own workers.

Florida's laws and the application of them are clearly on the side of the powerful employers and oblivious of the rights of several hundred Jamaican men who leave their families for five months every year to work the sugar cane fields with their machetes and to live in huge, bleak dormitories furnished only with endless rows of double-decker bunks.

The terrible plight of farm workers is a grim reminder of the true cost of the food we eat and of the crucial need for nationwide support of a strong farm workers' union.

WINDFALL FOR ANTI-POLLUTIONISTS

The shortage of commercial fertilizer is developing into an unexpected windfall for those concerned with rural pollution.

Since commercial fertilizers came into general use, probably billions of tons of manure has largely gone to waste on the farms, because the commercial fertilizer is cheaper and less costly and bulky to handle. At the same time, the waste manure has been polluting creeks, ponds, lakes, rivers, underground water, and the air.

Now crop producers are turning to plans for utilizing all of the manure they can get, some even building "manure pits" near or under feeding areas, some dehydrating it for easier handling, some using it raw.

It is benefiting both the crop producer and the environment.

THAT RIGHT TURN ON RED

Gov. Bond is scheduled to sign on Thursday a new traffic law allowing a right turn on a red light.

But - motorists should be extremely careful. Don't barge through a red light.

You must first stop, then look for traffic coming from your left, and not go ahead until the traffic lane is clear.

This regulation is good, but it should be a national instead of a state law, to avoid dangerous confusion of motorists traveling in more than one state.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Pickets and Power: General Strikes Sweep Across World

WASHINGTON-- From strange boulevards in distant lands to familiar streets of our home cities pickets have just proven labor's power to topple a government, bankrupt a national treasury, paralyze a nation and deactivate a city. Some pickets were Communist-directed. But most were the placard carriers of traditional union chiefs skillfully weaving industrial power with political power.

From Addis Ababa's Churchill Road to London town's Trafalgar Square to San Francisco's Market Street and Bay, labor leaders, in the past few weeks, have done what comes naturally. And few observers have analyzed the phenomena. Nor have many seen the implications to the citizenry, to political leaders and even to national labor leaders themselves.

At what point does the ever- accumulating power of organized labor's rank and file and its pressure on its chiefs become an inherent danger to any nation?

This strength gathers swiftly. Some nine years ago, for example, I walked down Churchill Road in Ethiopia's Addis Ababa to the newly founded Confederation of Ehtiopian Labor Unions (CELU). It had been launched by the King of Kings himself-- under pressure from our government and with the help of the AFL- CIO and some German unions.

As I recall, I found a cardboard with "CELO" handprinted on it, attached to a door. Inside were two typewriters (one a gift from the democratic "West," the other from Communist Czechoslovakia), a secretary, an official and several desks. CELU had virtually no membership. But it had Emperor Haile Selassie's reluctant blessing.

This past March 7, less than a decade later, CELU pulled a four- day general strike. Its 85,000 members quit at a signal from a much more opulent headquarters than the one I visited.

Transport stopped. Trucks did not roll. Banks were affected. Tourism was hurt when hotel staffs walked out. The tobacco industry was crippled. Airports were closed when the air traffic controller struck. Food distribution crept. Buses came infrequently, if at all.

It would be unethical and unfair to ignore the bitter grievances and low wages of the Ethiopian workers. But, equally, it would be dangerous to ignore the inherent power displayed by the militant labor leaders who are pushing around the moderate CELU officials.

"We are stronger even than the army," said one top general strike leader.

There's the crux of picket power. It's today's version of what a long- forgotten American labor leader by name of John L. Lewis said-- "You can't dig coal with bayonets."

But you can shut down a nation with a sign- toting picket as a symbol of organized labor led by the wrong men, the ambitious or the amateurs.

And closer to home culturally and politically, there is the now tortured British government. Laborite Prime Minister Harold Wilson came to power after the Communist-dominated coal diggers simply willed the end of the Conservative administration. The coal miners simply blockaded the pits and power stations.

Mr. Wilson himself is the authority for the amazing fact that since last November the coal conflict and the curtailment of industry by the enforced three- day week actually cost his nation well over $19 billion. This awesome figure doesn't include the additional losses springing from the rail and other stoppages. One estimate puts it all at some $25 billion. And that in some five months.

Towards the strike's end the miners were attempting to push the Trades Union Congress (counterpart of the AFL- CIO) into a massive general strike to paralyze Britain. This failed. But the Heath government was toppled. This is power indeed. And the miner's grievances don't negate the implications of such raw strength.

At one point the National Union of Mineworkers' powerful influential leader, a self- avowed Communist reportedly a member of the party's politburo, said he would attempt to prevent the use of the British army if it sought to protect that kingdom's vital pits.

So we come now to San Francisco. Recently, for nine days much of this lovely city was semi- paralyzed. Led by the Service Employes union, municipal workers crippled hospitals and health services, snarled public transit, tied up 350,000 commuters seeking to get to their daily bread, and reverted to the tactic of shutting down sewage-processing plants.

Thus hundreds of millions of gallons of raw sewage (as happened in New York once) poured into the bay, the ocean and onto some of the beaches. Further, the strikers threatened to shut down the entire critical port and the water supply mechanism. During most of the stoppage they defied the courts. They were supported by the city central labor council and the state labor organizations. Again-- there were grievances. Again-- there was the demonstration of the power of an organized rank and file.

We know who leads these unions now in lands across the world-- and here at home. But what of tomorrow? In whose hands will such absolute power rest?

Washington Merry-Go-Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Nixon and Detente

WASHINGTON-- President Nixon is deeply conscious of the terrible power at his fingertips to plunge the world into a nuclear holocaust

"I could push this button right here and in 20 minutes 70 million Russians would be dead," he told a secret strategy session on March 8. "And 25 minutes later, 70 million Americans would be dead," he added.

He made the statement to dramatize the importance of the Soviet American detente. But it is a remark he has made in past private conversations, betraying a strange fascination with his control over the world's mightiest nuclear force.

He has also spoken admiringly of the cold courage that the late President Kennedy demonstrated during the nuclear showdown with Russia in 1962 over missile shipments to Cuba.

But on March 8, according to the confidential minutes, he spoke only of averting the massive casualties he could cause by pushing the nuclear button. We should "pray a lot," he told party leaders, and "do everything in our power to get along" with the Soviets.

The way to prevent a "longterm crisis," he said, was to avert a "shortterm crisis." One way this could be accomplished, he urged, was to grant them trade concessions.

"If we don't talk to them, if we don't trade with them, we're going to face enormous increases in defense expenditures," he warned.

The President argued that it is possible to deal with the Soviets without approving their ideology.

"I despise what happened to Solzhenitxyn," he said, referring to the banishment of the dissident Soviet writer Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn. "But he's in Paris rather than Siberia or six feet under. We're not approving anything about their system."

Senate Republican leader Hugh Schott quickly agreed. "We used to look for Reds under the bed," he said. "As I see it, we're moving to the living room, not into bed with them."

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger suggested a different analogy. "Presently," he said, "we have broken the ice. We're in a parlous period even so, but we should use the thaw to get good water from the spring."

STRANGE SWAP: The taxpayers are bailing out another giant corporation, Rockwell International, which had been stuck with a lavish, out- of- the- way building it couldn't use.

Now the General Services Administration has agreed to take over the unoccupied building in exchange for government- owned property, which the corporation is leasing but would like to acquire.

The $20 million facility, which the taxpayers are about to take off Rockwell's hands, is located about 40 miles outside of Los Angeles. It is a magnificent building, nestled in the rolling hills of Laguna Niguel, Calif.

Because of a cutback in military electronics procurement, however, it has remained empty since its completion in 1971. Quite understandably, Rockwell officials have been eager to unload the white elephant, which has cost the company more than $1 million a year merely to maintain.

About a year ago, GSA advised Congress of its intention to exchange three "surplus" facilities in Los Angeles for the Laguna Niguel building. The appraisers determined the value of the swapped properties was approximately the same.

The deal would have gone through a month later, except for the strong opposition of Rep. Jack Brooks D-Tex., whose Government Operations subcommittee doggedly monitors GSA.

Brooks' year- long probe has determined that GSA has actually received reservations for only about half of the 750,000 square feet in the huge Rockwell plant. And some of those requests, Brooks felt, were suspect.

The President's San Clemente estate, for example, is only about 10 miles away and already about 20,000 square feet have been designated as a "temporary presidential documents storage area." But most of the government officials, who eventually will inhabit the building, live 30 to 40 miles away in the Los Angeles area. GSA officials vigorously deny that the $20 million building was purchased more for the convenience of President Nixon than the government employes it is supposed to house.

"The GSA has misled Congress and the public about the need for this space," Brooks told us, "in an effort to justify the acquisition." He complained that "there is no public transportation, no low or middle income housing in the area, and it is going to cost the government millions to provide these services and to move government agencies" to Laguna Niguel.

GSA boss Arthur Sampson told us, in rebuttal that the acquisition of the Rockwell facility was "a once- in- a-lifetime opportunity to get (the space) at half price." He said "action plans" would be formulated to provide housing and transportation.

He made no effort to conceal his feelings toward Brooks. "I'm tired of being nice to ... our dear old friend" on Capitol Hill Sampson stated, complaining that Brooks had delayed the acquisition of the facility for almost a year.

A child's 'cuteness' may be inexperience

By SHAREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economist

You hear a child cry outside the church or meeting. A child of 7 or 8 trips, falls and picks herself up. Typically adults' reactions are indulgent smiles and other expressions of "Isn't that cute?" One gets the distinct feeling that the child's pain or embarrassment isn't real. Children are regarded as actors whose feelings, pains or worries aren't real or serious, according to author — John Holt.

He says this is part of the cuteness syndrome. Much of what we respond to in children as "cute" is really their weakness and littleness. So we think they're cute partly because they're little, innocent and can do much less than we can as adults.

But look at this from a child's viewpoint. They don't consider it cute or enjoyable to be powerless and always having to give way to the real needs of adult- sized people. Giving way might range from putting up with hugs and kisses from each and every relative to not crying in public. Their innocence, to children, is like inexperience and ignorance. They want to know what's going on and why and aren't sentimental about it at all.

When we label only children as innocent, it seems to say they're too unaware or maybe even dumb to know better. Holt says innocence is hope, trust, confidence, the feeling that the world is open and that life has many possibilities. These qualities are valuable in everyone, so when we link them wistfully to childhood only, it reveals our sense of hopelessness.

Learning to walk illustrates another symptom of our cuteness affliction. Infants are clumsy as they work so hard at learning to walk. Most of us would give up anything that we do as badly as new walkers do, but they just keep on. Their determination, courage and pleasure in learning should be what we respond to, not their littleness or tumbles or quick plops on the floor. This is their work they are doing for themselves, not to please us.

Viewing children as "help objects" means we feel kids are cutest when they're halpless and dependent because it makes us feel needed and competent. Responding to their cute helplessness and assumed lack of any real problems or abilities exploits them and discourages their efforts. They in turn learn to exploit our need for "cutesy" behavior to gain approval and special favors or treatment.

In summary, we should try to get out of the habit of seeing little children as "cute" and regarding their energy, enthusiasm, resourcefulness, curiosity, trust, forgiving nature, great capacity for delight, joy and sorrow and their eager involvement in life as something big people outgrow.

Among the duties of the auxiliaries are receiving donations to the Jimmy Durante Children's Fund; The City of Hope, which is a research of cancer, leukemia and other diseases; the Max Baer Heart Fund; and the Golden Eagles' Fund.

The auxiliary women's convention will be held in June.

The Sikeston men's lodge wired their auxiliary women a dozen red roses, which centered the chapter's table at the conference.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Fish and Wildlife Service has accepted the gift of a 220,000-acre ranch 65 miles south of Albuquerque, N.M., the largest tract ever donated as a wildlife refuge. The donor was the Campbell Family Foundation of Albuquerque.

VD victims must name all contacts

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with your advice to the East Coaster who had a bad case of VD. However, as a medical officer of a health department, I think you should make it clear that most local departments have the authority to enforce examination of friends with whom the infected person has been intimate.

Only when people realize the importance of naming ALL their contacts do we stand a reasonable chance of gaining control over VD, which has now reached epidemic proportions. Please, Ann, print this letter and urge cooperation. It is desperately needed. -- Owen Sound, Ont.

Dear O.S.: I have repeatedly urged my readers who learn they have VD to cooperate with the health authorities and reveal the names of everyone with whom they have been intimate. Thank you for reminding me to do so again.

VD, unless treated, can cause serious and permanent damage --even death. Moreover, an infected person who is unaware of it can spread the disease to an alarming number of unsuspecting victims.

I repeat for the umpteenth time. If anyone who reads this column suspects that he or she has VD, please go to your city or county health department at once. You will be examined and, if necessary, treated without charge. Your parents will not be notified, regardless of your age. (Thank the good Lord THAT law has been changed.) And, when the health officer askes you to name your contacts, level with him. This is not finking on your friends. In fact, you will be doing them an enormous favor.

Dear Ann Landers: I noted with interest that when a reader asked you flat -out how you felt about beiing called "Ms." you made it abundantly clear that you didn't care for the handle.

A recent poll revealed that over 75 per cent of the women between 20 and 40 who were asked the same question didn't wish to be called "Ms." either. So what's new? Any polltaker should know that a Miss who becomes a Mrs. has something that a Ms. probably does NOT have --and that's a husband. --Call Me Madame

Dear Madame: Thanks for the fill- in. I didn't mean to imply that I see anything wrong with wanting to be called "Ms." I believe if a woman signs herself "Ms." she should be addressed that way --but not until or unless.

Dear Ann Landers: For 22 years we've financed everything under the sun for my in -laws. They have never had the decency to say "the check arrived" --much less "thank you ."

There are nine children in the family and my husband has assumed some reponsibility for all of them. He has even gone to the bank and borrowed money (on which he has to pay interest) to help them out.

From the day we married, his parents have had their hands in my husband's pockets. I am sick to death of it but he says he can't refuse them. His father has a stroke recently and when he dies, my husband's unearned guilt will probably triple and his mother will lean on him even more.

I know they are all sick, but what can I do? If his mother would just tell him she loves him it would help, but she's a cold fish and will never change.

If you print this you will make me very happy. And I'll see to it that all twelve of them get a framed copy. -- Outnumbered

Dear Out: Here it is. Go get the frames.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting --What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346 , Ciicago, Ill. 60654, enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self -addressed envelope.

Dogwood festival scheduled

CHARLESTON — The Sixth Annual Dogwood - Azalea Festival has been scheduled for the weekend of April 20-21. The dates were selected by the Mollie French Garden Club as the time when the abundance of dogwood trees, azaleas and other flowering shrubs in the city will be most beautiful.

Serving as chairman of this year's event will be Terry Rowe, director of federal programs in the Charleston school district. His co-chairman will be Charles Rorex, superintendent of schools.

As in past festivals, an Azalea Queen will be crowned to reign over the festival. This year's queen will be crowned during a Saturday night dance sponsored by the Jaycees. A prince and princess will also be selected and crowned Sunday afternoon.

Directed tours, showing the most outstanding flowering displays, will be supervised by the Mollie French Garden Club. Fish and chicken dinners, furnished by the Junior Study Club, will be available from 11 a.m. Sunday throughout the afternoon in the E. Charles Rolwing Park, where most of the activities will be centered.

Among the other highlights will be a parade, antique cars and numerous booths featuring games, crafts and an art show.

The annual event is sponsored by the community Betterment Committee through the Chamber of Commerce.

Head Start will sponsor chili supper

LILBOURN — North Lilbourn Head Start Center is sponsoring a chili supper Monday from 5 to 9 p.m. at the center.

Bulldogs return 12 lettermen

If experience counts for anything, and in high school athletics it usually does, the Sikeston Bulldogs should be well set up for the season which begins for them on Monday. When the game gets underway, the Bulldogs will have at least three lettermen from last year's 8-3 squad sitting on the bench. In all, 12 sport a big red S on their jackets or sweaters. They are:

JOHN LEIBLE, a 6-foot-2 senior catcher who made All-District as a sophomore and a junior. Leible, an outstanding defensive catcher, has an above average arm and averages of .390 and .424 in his first two years. John, of course, will start behind the plate on Monday barring the unforseen.

JIM SAULTER is another senior starter from last year's semi-successful team. Jim, an acceptable defensive first baseman with long arms because of his 6-foot-3 height, has dropped some weight and is obviously quicker in the field and going down the first base line. His averages of .235 and .241 are not exceptional, but big Jim is a feared powerhitter who has yet to hit his stride.

BILL SCHATZLEY is the infield leader for Sikeston. After subbing his entire sophomore season, Bill surprised everyone by taking command of the second base post early and finishing the season with an eye-popping .370 average. Schatzley has good range at second base and has greatly improved his work on the double- play pivot.

RICK EISENBACH had his troubles at short last year. After hitting .320 and making a single error as a sophomore - a feat that earned him all-state honorable mention - Rick's entire game fell off last year. His average dropped to .186 and the cat- quick infielder made eight errors, most of them throwing errors. So far in practices the talented athlete has shown indications that he is ready to return to his 1972 form. If he does, Eisenbach could be the key to a good Bulldogs season.

KENNY STOKES is a coach's dream. Possessing one of the strongest arms on the team, Kenny has pitched well for the last two years. He led the team in strikeouts last year, racking up 15 against Charleston. With a 3-0 record as a freshman and 2-1 as a sophomore, Stokes would be the ace of most other high school pitching staffs in the area. However, he also carries a big bat. Against top competition the 5-foot 11 junior hit .391 his freshman year and .400 as a sophomore. This season Stokes takes his talents to third base, when he's not pitching, a position he played for the last half of last year.

GREG COLWICK will probably move to left field this year after making the All-State team (honorable mention) his first two years in center. Greg's hitting fell off last year, his average tumbling to .282 after a .340 sophomore year, but his fine defense didn't suffer. Blessed with the ability to get a good jump on the ball along with adequate speed, Colwick will team with centerfielder Donmy Taylor to roam the spacious pastures of Sikeston's V. F. W. ballpark.

Moving to centerfield this year is DONNY TAYLOR. Possessor of a strong throwing arm, Taylor is also an acceptable catcher. But, considering the depth back there, he will probably see all his action in center. After riding the bench as a sophomore, Donny came on with a strong second half last year to lead the team in extra basehits and to finish with a .353 batting mark.

MITCHELL WALKER is one of four lettermen on the pitching staff. Walker, who will probably fill in at times on the infield and outfield, has one of the best career ERA's in the district. Allowing only two earned runs in two years, Mitch's total ERA is 0.14, an outstanding figure to go with his 8-1 career won- lost mark. In his two years of action, Walker has also proved he can swing the bat with averages of .364 and .375.

Joining Walker and Stokes in the starting rotation is curveballing RICHARD BLANKENSHIP. The bender that Rich throws has made many a good hitter look foolish. Blankenship, 3-0 last year after missing most of the year with mononucleosis, has averaged more than a strikeout per inning, as have Stokes and Walker. The 5-foot- 10 hurler complied a respectable .250 batting mark last year to go with his 2.25 ERA.

BRUCE LAWRENCE will likely play rightfield in the season's first game. Although Bruce didn't hit much last year, he did hit nearly .500 for the Senior Babe Ruth district champions and is a good, solid lefthanded hitter as well as being one of the fastest Bulldogs.

CHARLIE MILLER will again ride the bench and this is getting to be old hat for Charlie. No speed demon, Charlie none - the - less would be starting behind the plate for almost any other area high school. Choo-choo hit .211 as a freshman and .333 as a junior, both in reserve roles. His ability to hit is unquestioned and he has a good throwing arm, but John Leible will probably again prove to be too big of an obstacle for the junior receiver. You can bet, however, that Miller will see action somewhere, before the year is over.

Lefthander RICK LOVE will also pitch for Sikeston this year. Another senior, Love has battled control for two years and if he can throw the ball over the plate, his lefthandedness will likely get him some action. Rick had no record last year and an ERA of 3.94.

Others have come through in practices so far and it appears that Sikeston will have the strongest bench it has ever possessed. A freshman, David Shell, has been most impressive as a catcher. Along with Leible, he is a rarity — a fleet- footed catcher. David has a good arm and should hit well if he gets a chance. Dale Deal will join Lawrence as the infield fillin. Deal is good defensively everywhere on the infield and is among the fastest Bulldogs. His bat is the only question mark. Kevin Waters, a senior who transferred to Sikeston last year, is an outfield reserve who can run and cover territory. Lance Hesselrode is another outfield reserve and Dwayne Selph give the Bulldogs infield insurance with quickness and a strong arm.

The Bulldogs are fast, should have good hitting and have so many pitchers they don't know what to do with them all. However when it comes to state competition, the ball sometimes takes funny hops and even good teams don't always win. These talented young men who have kept on plugging away feel that maybe this year is their year. They've been wrong twice.

Blue in top form

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vida Blue, an American League Cy Young Award winner who has been trying since 1971 to prove it wasn't a fluke, is picking up where he left off last year in search of his rookie form.

Blue went to the mound in the sixth inning and retired 12 straight batters to lead the world champion Oakland A's to a 7-4 exhibition baseball victory over Milwaukee Thursday.

Blue, who had an off season in 1972 after a long hold out over his contract, fanned three batters in his last four innings on the hill. Tim Hosley and Bill North gave the A's the runs they needed with a two-run homer each.

In other exhibition games, Pittsburgh split its squad to take a 7-4 victory over the New York Yankees and drop a 10-9 decision to Kansas City, Houston edged Atlanta 6-5 in 12 innings, Boston got by Montreal 7-6 in 10 innings, St. Louis shutout Detroit 2-0, Philadelphia defeated Cincinnati 5-3, Minnesota eked out a 7-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox, San Francisco blanked Cleveland 5-0, the Chicago Cubs beat San Diego 98, and Los Angeles defeated Baltimore 3-2.

Dave Parker, an outfielder who's playing first base for the injured Bob Robertson, hit two solo home runs and a triple to pace the Pirates by the Yankees. Ken Brett, who gave up one run in the second and three in the third, was credited with the victory for seven innings on the mound.

In the other half of the Pirate's twin bill, Kansas City's rookie outfielder, Al Cowens, singled in a run in the ninth inning to give the Royals a onerun victory.

Milt May singled with two outs to give Houston a 12-inning decision over Atlanta in another cliff hanger.

Craig Caskey's wild pitch in the 10th inning allowed Dick McAuliffe to score from third, lifting the Red Sox over Montreal.

Mike Garman threw five innings, allowing only one hit, and three Cardinal pitchers combined to shut out Detroit on just four hits.

Mike Anderson accounted for three of Philadelphia's runs with a homer in the fourth inning.

Minnesota got a clutch homer from Tony Oliva in the seventh inning, breaking open a tie game, and then held on to beat the White Sox.

Tom Bradley and Jim Willoughby allowed seven hits between them for the shutout and Cleveland gave up the two winning runs — both unearned — in the second inning on an error by Dwain Anderson.

John Grubb and Willie McCovey both committed eighth-inning errors that led to four Chicago runs, and Jose Cardenal hit a three-run homer to give the Cubs their close decision.

Jerry Royster smacked a two-run double in the ninth inning that lifted the Dodgers from a 2-1 deficit for the victory.

Cards look good

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals say they won't carry more than 11 pitchers when the National League season opens next month, but tall right-hander Mike Garman isn't worrying.

The 24-year-old Garman, whom the Rebirds acquired in December from the Boston Red Sox in a six-player trade, Thursday solidified his position with five strong innings in a 2-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

"I'm getting stronger each time out," said Garman, who permitted only Ben Ogilvie's fourth-inning single. "I can do more things. I had a good curve today."

While Garman was impressive, so were ex-Red Sox righthander Ken Tatum and veteran Orlando Pena, who yielded only three hits the final four innings.

The Cards scored the only run they needed when Ken Reitz doubled and Lou Brock followed with a triple.

Another highlight for the Cards, who boosted their Grapefruit League record to 8-4 ahead of a game today with the New York Mets, was Jose Cruz' production of three hits.

Cruz, in a bid to nail down a position along with outfielders Brock, Reggie Smith and Bake McBride, raised his spring batting average to .363.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Thursday's Daily Standard that David Shell recorded Sikeston's only first place in the junior high track meet at Kennett early this week. It should have been Mike Shell.

ST. LOUIS (AP)— The St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League have awarded St. Louis University star John Nestic a five- game trial with their Denver Spurs farm club of the Western Hockey League.

The 5- foot- 7, 170- pound Nestic last week concluded a 141- game collegiate career with 141 goals and 268 points, ranking third on the all- time collegiate scoring list.

Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

All that remains of the 1973-74 Southeast Missouri high school basketball season is the naming of The Daily Standard's all star and all academic teams! Well ... at least that's what I thought.

I had hoped that all the controversy that had been stirred by the Kelly-- Lilbourn first round class AA state tournament game had died down, but apparently it hasn't.

Everyone recalls the one point decision of the Panthers, but what normally comes to mind when the game is mentioned is the letters of protest about the officiating from Kelly fans.

This scribe could have started it all with his "cheap" foul remarks in reporting the game ... If so, we certainly do regret it.

I have numerous friends in both communities and hate to take sides, but it seems that I did in reporting the contest.

But my reference to the cheap fouls wasn't meant to reflect upon a bad game of officiaiting, it was mostly made to agree with some of the fans protest of two, maybe three calls.

The letters of protest from fans have attacked two of the district's finest officials ... Buddy Godwin and Paul Hawkins. Buddy is a personal friend of mine and I would bet my life that he wouldn't personally throw a game or take a grudge out on one athelete. It's not like him.

I know many of you will say that I'm just trying to smooth things over ... Maybe I am, but it hurts me to think that one game has stirred so much hatred and discontent ... Maybe it would be best to drop all sporting events in high school if it is going to cause another controversy as the one now going on.

Let's forget the past and look toward a better tomorrow...

Mrs. Donald Beggs letter to the editor in Thursday's edition of The Daily Standard, referring to the above mentioned controversy, brought out one point of interest to this scribe.

It was mentioned that Mr. Thurston Hill, superintendent of Dexter schools and member of the board of directors of the Missouri State High School Activities Association, made the selection of the officials to call the state games from our district.

We're not sure if he does, but we feel that many fine young officials are overlooked each season when the state tournament rolls around. And this could be one of the reasons that most of the new, young officials don't stay long as they seem to be overlooked by the 'higher ups'.

Hill has been on the board some 20 years ... and this is too long for one man to represent an area. New blood makes for a better organizatin.

We have caught comments from area administrators of an attempt to unseat him ...

If the administrators select the officials for regional and state tournament games ... It might be wise for some of them to attend some of the games and watch some of the referees work ... rather than take someone elses word for it.

One example of a bad selection of officials was in the state tournaments, where everybody had gripes. I know for a fact that we had at least eight men from the Bootheel who could have been more consistant in their calls than the group that called the Class A, AA, AAA and AAAA event.

If I had to rate the officials calling in the state tournament, only about two would pass ... It's time to take a look at the selection process and rate them more accurately.

But officiating is a tough job, you get very few (if any) pats on the back ... but there is always somebody ready to attack you ... that's why I got out of it.

Everyone should try it one season Even some of those avid female fans.

A good friend of mine and many area fans and coaches, M. M. McMahon, came up with a great idea on the state tournament officiating setup. He had always asked for obtaining officiating partners to work the games, instead of getting one official from here and another from St. Louis or another part of the state. This plan was used one year in the state event and everything went smoothly, but was abandoned after that. This plan needs to be reviewed!!!

Now I've had my say ... Let the letters fly.

But remember ... the more you stir it, the worse it smells.

Lilbourn in finals

VANDUSER — A pair of star studded independent basketball teams, Essex and Lilbourn, collide for the championship of the Vanduser Men's independent basketball tournament. Essex made the finals via a 116-85 romp of Security National Bank and Lilbourn edged out the host 106-100.

Former Missouri University great, Don Tomlinson, dumped in 30 points while former Arkansas State standout Harold Persful added 28 and Bill Kelley contributed 24 to serve up the knockout punch for Essex. Morris Karnes paced the bank's offense with 20 markers.

Sharp shooting Pat McClarty drilled in 33 points to pace Lilbourn's move into the finals and got 21 and 19 point backing from Alan Mitchell and David McClarty. David Pobst hit 25 for Vanduser's top mark.

Tonight's title bout will be followed by a grudge match between Security National and Vanduser around 9 p.m.

Moberly defeats Vincennes

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Moberly, Mo., meets Chipola, Fla., and defending champion Mercer County of Trenton, N.J., takes on Northeastern Oklahoma Friday night in semifinals of the National Junior College Basketball Tournament.

Moberly kept its title hopes alive with a 63-59 squeaker over three-time national champion Vincennes. Ind., Thursday night in a game that was in doubt until the final six seconds.

Chipola rolled over frigid New York Community College 73-55 in Thursday night's other game.

In loser's bracket games Friday, Hill of Hillsboro, Tex., meets Copiah-Lincoln of Wesson, Miss., at noon, San Jacinto, Tex., faces Arizona Western of Yuma at 1:45 and Vincennes meets New York Community College at 3:30.

John Gordon led Moberly scorers with 20 points. Rickey Green was high for Vincennes with 17. Three of those came with less than two minutes to play—pulling the Indiana team to within two, 59-57.

Albert Gardner led Chipola with 28 points. Nestor Serrano had 14 to lead NYCCC scorers.

In earlier games Thursday, Copiah-Lincoln sent Niagara of New York home 106-92; Arizona Western Eliminated Alexander City, Ala., 84-75; and Grand View of Iowa ousted Northeastern Colo., 70-59.

Littell among trims

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — The Kansas City Royals have announced the names of 10 players who are being trimmed from their squad and the sale of one player, leaving the baseball club with 33 men on the roster.

Eight more will have to be cut from the squad before opening day.

Outfielder Steve Hovley, used sparingly, was sold to Baltimore.

Eight of the players were scheduled to go to Sarasota, Fla., after today's split squad exhibitions for reassignment. They are pitchers Norm Angelini, Dennis Leonard and Mark Littell, infielders George Brett, Buddy Hunger and Jamie Quirk, catcher John Wathan and outfielder Keith Marshall.

Two pitchers, Paul Pelz and Randy Hammon, will remain with the major league team until Monday and then will go to the minor league base at Sarasota for reassignment.

THE BIBLE
127. The Ark is Returned

During the seven months the Ark of the Covenant remained in the Philistine nation, the Lord plagued the cities of Ashdod, Gath, and Ekron where the Philistines attempted to keep the Ark. The plagues were so severe that the five leaders decided to return the Ark to Israel.

The Philistine diviners advised that a guilt offering of five golden emerods and five golden mice (symbols of the plague) be placed inside the Ark. Further, they advised that a new cart should be built for it, and that two cows with young calves which had never been yoked to a cart should be allowed to pull the Ark wherever they would — probably to their new calves. Surprisingly, the animals pulled the cart bearing the Ark directly to Beth-shemesh, "And the cart came into the field of Joshua...and they clave the wood of the cart, and offered the kine a burnt offering unto the Lord." (I Samuel 6:14)

However, the Lord slew 70 of the men of Beth-shemesh because they looked into the Ark. The people mourned, "...Who is able to stand before this holy Lord God? And to whom shall he go up from us?" (I Samuel 6:20)

Then they sent messengers to Kirjath-jearim to ask the people there to come and receive the Ark.

The pretzel was invented by Charlemagne, King of the Franks and first Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. When he subdued the heathen Saxons more than eleven centuries ago, he forced them to bake the sign of the cross into all their bread and pastries in token of their conversion to Christianity. Thus the pretzel was born. Down to our time it had to be twisted by hand. But just a few years ago high speed machines were developed to loop and tie the dough into a perfect product of the pretzel maker's art. Today the pretzel not only comes in all sizes of the traditional shape but comes in circles, twists,and sticks of all sizes.

I'VE BEEN RIGGLED AND GIGGLED AND PAINTED INSIDE by the carpenter's brigade. I tell you the things we homes go through to keep young looking, sometimes makes me wonder if its worth it. However, I must admit that my 2 bedrooms give a more cozy and refreshing look and my kitchen has that fresh clean smell and I love that new coat that my cabinets got, the color was so becoming to my snack bar. The big living room looks so nice with my fresh cleaned carpet. My bath has a shower over the tub and all rooms are nice size with roomy closets. I have a screened in patio and a nice work shop. Also central heating. NOW we homes don't like to sound as though we're bragging, but I'm about the cutest thing you'll find for $13,900.00... 319 Virginia

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, March 22, the 81st day of 1974. There are 284 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1765, the English Parliament passed the Stamp Act to raise revenue in the American Colonies.

On this date:

In 1622, some 350 Virginians were killed in the first Indian massacre of European colonists in America.

In 1794, the U.S. Congress passed a law prohbiting U.S. vessels from supplying slaves to another country.

In 1820, an American naval hero, Stephen Decatur, was mortally wounded in a duel with Commodore James Barron near Washington.

In 1917, the United States became the first nation to recognize a new provisional government in Russia.

In 1933, President Franklin Roosevelt signed a bill legalizing beer and wine with 3.2 per cent alcohol content.

In 1945, the Arab League was founded in Cairo.

Ten years ago: France's President Charles de Gaulle was wildly cheered on a visit to Martinique in the French West Indies.

Five years ago: President Richard Nixon condemned student disorders around the country, but said the colleges, not the federal government, would have to deal with the protesters.

One year ago: General Ludvik Svoboda was elected to a second term as president of Czechoslovakia.

Today's birthdays: Former Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans is 66 years old. Gen. James Gavin is 67.

Thought for today: Peace is not made at the council table, or by treaties, but in the hearts of men, President Herbert Hoover, 1874-1964.

MUSICIAN JOHN CACAVAS STRIKES RIGHT NOTE WITH TELLY SAVALAS

Someone once said that life is a series of initiations. Whatever your past experience, there is always a new area to conquer in which you are a beginner.

John Cacavas, who composes, conducts and arranges the music for the majority of the "Kojak" episodes broadcast Wednesdays (10:00- 11:00 PM, EDT) on the CBS Television Network, is well aware of this.

After having established himself in New York City in all areas of music, including writing an oratorio, at age 21, for the NBC Symphony Orchestra, and composing many published works for concert band, marching band, orchestra and choir, as well as for television commercials, recording stars and live television shows, Cavacas decided he wanted to write for films. However, he found the opportunity lacking in the United States.

"I decided to move to London" Cacavas says, "because there seemed to be more opportunity there."

His assumption was correct. He quickly found himself very much in demand, and soon scored the music for five films, two of which starred Telly Savalas, star of the "Kojak" series.

That association proved beneficial to both men. Upon learning of Cacavas' background, Savalas expressed his unfulfilled desire to sing. Cacavas agreed to help. Savalas' first album thus far has been released only in Europe, where it has been very popular.

Savalas returned the favor by introducing Cacavas to several motion picture and television producers in Hollywood. "A friend can open some doors for you," Cacavas notes, "but you're on your own after that."

NBC DOUBLE FEATURE NIGHT AT THE MOVIES: "The Rockford Files" and "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn"- James Garner stars as the head of an agency investigating cases "closed" by the police department; and Cliff Robertson and Diane Baker star in the drama of a family waging a battle against poverty and alcohol.

James Garner, as he investigates a death to determine whether it was homicide, and Cliff Robertson and Diane Baker, battling poverty with their family, star in two 90-minute films, "The Rockford Files" and "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," to be colorcast on "NBC Double Feature Night at the Movies" Wednesday, March 27 (7- 10 p.m. DST), on the NBC Television Network.

Co- starring in "The Rockford Files," starting at 8 p.m. NYT, are Lindsay Wagner, William Smith, Robert Donley, Joe Santos, Nita Talbot, Stuart Margolin, Bill Mumy and Michael Lerner.

Co- starring in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," starting at 9:30 p.m. NYT, are Nancy Malone, James Olson, Pamela Ferdin and Michael Wixted.

In "The Rockford Files," Jim Rockford (James Garner), as head of an agency which investigates cases that are "closed" by the police is approached by a young woman, Sara Butler (Miss Wagner), to find out whether her father (Bill Quinn) was slain or committed suicide. With a lead from Sara's young brother Nick (Bill Mumy), Rockford looks into Butler's death and is intrigued enough by what he learns to proceed with the investigation.

The case becomes more complex when in the process of investigating, Rockford the hunter, becomes the hunted.

In "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," a family of four fights poverty and alcohol: the mother scrubbing floors to put food on the table; the father fighting his failures with drink and dreams.

Katie Nolan's (Miss Baker) love for her husband, Johnny (Robertson), is true but sorely tested when she tries to feed and clothe daughter Francie, 12 (Miss Ferdin), and son Neely, 11 (Wixted), while Johnny tries to get an occasional night's work as a waiter.

Katie's often- married sister, "Sissy" (Miss Malone), tries to help, but her questionable marriage arrangements cause Katie much grief. A hand of friendship is extended to Katie by Officer McShane (Olson), who tries to suppress his feelings for her because of her love for her husband.

The central character is Francie, whose love for her father blinds her to his weaknesses. These are hard times prior to World War I and the old Brooklyn tenements are at their worst. Francie clings to one thing which allows her dreams to soar beyond the scars of reality-- a large tree which grows just outside their apartment.

DINAH SHORE
Star of "Dinah's Place"
Mondays- Fridays, NBC Television Network
(In Color, 9- 9:30 a.m.)

Dinah Shore, in her fourth season as star of the successful daytime series "Dinah's Place," on the NBC Television Network, has come a long way from her days as Frances Rose Shore, cheerleader at Hume Fogg High School in Nashville, Tenn.

While in college at Vanderbilt University (Nashville), Dinah became interested in singing. In her sophomore year she had her own 15- minute radio show on WSM, Nashville. She opened her broadcasts with the song "Dinah" and used the same song in an audition for disc jockey Martin Block several years later. He called her "Dinah" because he couldn't remember "Frances." She has used the name since.

After receiving her BA degree in sociology, Dinah tackled New York and she teamed with another young singer, Frank Sinatra, on radio station WNEW. A two- year engagement at the Strand Theatre followed. Her work impressed bandleader Xavier Cugat, for whom she made her first recordings.

Movie roles also came her way and she appeared in "Thank Your Lucky Stars," "Up in Arms," "Belle of the Yukon, "Follow the Boys," "Till the Clouds Roll By" and "Aaron Slick From Punkin' Crick."

In 1951, she launched her own half- hour television show. "The Dinah Shore Show" was expanded to an hour program in 1956

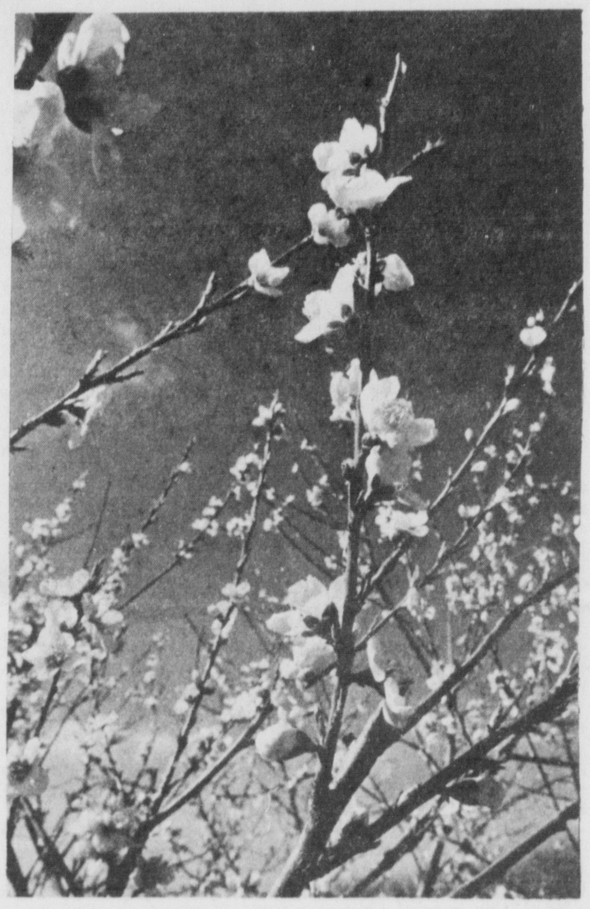
Growers fight frost

Bill Lambert, left, and Carlton Stewart, (top photo) both peach growers in the Crowley's Ridge between Malden and Campbell take a look at one of 10 helicopters that tried to stir up cold air that threatened to frost peach blossoms in more than 3,000 acres of orchards Thursday night. Smudge pots were used in some orchards to try to keep the chill off the delicate blossoms (right photo).



Kissinger ready for Moscow trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger conferred with President Nixon today on his upcoming trip to Moscow, where he says he will seek a breakthrough that could produce a concrete treaty to limit nuclear weapons by the end of 1974.

Kissinger came to Nixon's Oval Office a day after he told a news conference that prospects are reasonably good for the breakthrough. But he also cautioned that relations between the two powers are passing through a difficult period.

The secretary, who leaves this weekend, said rapid improvement of nuclear weapons has slowed progress on a treaty. Congress' unwillingness to grant trade benefits to the Soviet Union and friction in the Middle East also contribute to the difficulty, he said.

And yet, Kissinger absolved Moscow of blame for Syrian clashes with Israel in the Golan Heights and said: "Both of us have an obligation to contribute to peace and both of us are exchanging ideas on the subject."

The United States and Soviet Union signed their first nuclear weapons agreement in 1972, restricting defensive systems and putting temporary limits on some offensive weapons.

The current second round of SALT talks involves an exchange of technical information, but also a stalemate in the negotiating process, Kissinger said.

"Then a point is reached ... where the two sides have to agree on what it is they are trying to accomplish. And after that there has to be the hard negotiation on giving concrete content to this conceptual breakthrough," he said.

"I would expect that if there is a SALT agreement this year, it will have an adequate concreteness, and it will not be simply general principles," Kissinger said.

House okays $29 million emergency funding bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A $29 million emergency appropriations bill, the subject of three days of bargaining between House and Senate conferees, was approved by the House Thursday and sent to the Senate.

Members of the House and Senate appropriations committees had spent the time hammering out differences between House and Senate versions of the measure.

If approved by the Senate it will go to the governor.

In its current form it provides $40,000 to begin transfer of the Independence Residence Center of Central Missouri State University at Warrensburg to the University of Missouri.

Also authorized is $941,500 in emergency funding for the legislature for the remainder of the current fiscal year.

That provision was questioned by Minority Floor Leader Robert Snyder of Kirkwood who asked House Appropriations Committee Chairman James Russell, D-Florissant, why the emergency appropriation for the House was needed since $3.4 million has been appropriated to fund the House.

"We've run short," Russell replied.

Snyder persisted, saying he felt the people had a right to know why the legislature was spending more money.

Russell cited inflation with increasing costs for salaries, postage and other items.

Given final approval by the House and sent to the Senate was a combination measure providing aid to certain hospitals at a rate of one-third the deficit and authorizing a mental retardation diagnosis and treatment program.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond favors the mental retardation program but opposes hospital aid. He vetoed last year a measure providing subsidies at 10 per cent of operating deficits for hospitals.

Also given final approval by the House were bills to:

—Add two judges to the St. Louis County Circuit Court.

—Require the Highway Patrol to initiate a program to mark property in an attempt to prevent thefts. Sale of marked merchandise would be prohibited without a bill of sale from the owner.

—Provide a pay increase for magistrate court clerks.

—Make procedural changes for voter registration.

Man talks himself into jail sentence

Larry W. Taylor of Oran talked himself into a 24-hour jail sentence and a $50 fine Thursday night in City Court when he reportedly became beligerent with Judge Jim Sickle.

Taylor was appearing in court on speeding charges, but ended up with a contempt of court citation.

Police officers who were present in the courtroom said Taylor was asked if he pleaded guilty or not guilty and he replied that he was pleading guilty because he thought Sickle had already made up his mind on how to rule on his case.

The officers said Sickle told him he should not have said what he did and gave Taylor a short lecture on how to behave in a courtroom. Sickle again asked Taylor how he pleaded. Taylor made a reply similar to his first one. Police said his remarks were sprinkled with obscenities.

Sickle then issued the contempt of court citation and ordered Taylor to jail.

The speeding charges were continued until next week.

Fines levied Thursday include Melvin C. Young, 1707 Kentucky, driving while intoxicated, $210; Charlotte Lynn Dacus, 404 Dacus, driving while intoxicated, $110; Bill Carlos Taylor of Scott City, petit larceny, $140.

Loyd charged with manslaughter

GREENVILLE — Thurman Loyd Jr., 39, of St. Louis has been charged by Wayne County authorities with manslaughter in connection with a fatal accident which caused the death of a 5 - year - old girl Tuesday one mile south of Coldwater on Highway 67.

Prior to the filing of the manslaughter charge, Lloyd had been held as a driving while intoxicated suspect. Results of a blood test have not been revealed.

Cheri Springer of Minneapolis, Minn., was killed Tuesday morning when the southbound car in which she was riding was struck head on. The accident occurred when a northbound pickup truck driven by Lloyd attempted to pass another vehicle and struck a car driven by Lee Taylor Jester, 29, of Hugo, Minn.

Lloyd, formerly of Kennett, had been released Sunday afternoon from the Dunklin County jail after paying the balance of a fine on a driving while intoxicated conviction.

Lloyd is being held in the Wayne County jail.

Maj. William Dolan

Maj. Dolan to speak to area officers

BENTON-- Maj. William Dolan of the Missouri Highway Patrol in Jefferson City will be guest speaker at the Southeast Missouri Peace Officers Association meeting to be held at 5 p.m. April 11 in the American Legion Hall at Benton, according to Scott County Sheriff John Dennis.

Sheriff Dennis said the meal and refreshments will be free and urges all lawmen to attend.

David Gaither, secretary-treasurer, reminds those who plan to join the organization to pay their membership dues in advance of the meeting.

'Copters help fight peach freeze

As Bootheel temperatures dropped well below freezing Thursday night, peach growers in the Dexter and Campbell areas used helicopters and smudge pots in an attempt to save blooms from being killed by frost.

Helicopters were first used by some area growers Saturday night when the temperature dropped as low as 24 degrees in the orchards near Campbell.

Helicopters are used to circulate the air in an attempt to keep frost from settling on the blooms. Peach trees in the area are now in full bloom which means frost could be disastrous to this year's crop.

George Lovins owner of C&L Orchard near Dexter said two helicopters were used Thursday night, one at each of two orchards. Lovins has about 100 acres in the two orchards, one of which is located in Dexter and the other northwest of Bloomfield.

Lovins said he thinks the helicopters may have kept enough frost off the blooms to protect future fruit growth. He recorded temperatures as low as 16 degrees last night, as well as temperatures ranging from 22 to 28 degrees.

The helicopters, which came from North Airways of Rolla, a frost control team, were on the ground today while peach growers waited to see if it would be necessary for them to fly again tonight

Helicopters and smudge pots also were used in the Crowley Ridge area west of Malden, where 10 to 15 of the approximately 25 growers in the area spent Thursday night working in the orchards trying to protect their trees from frost.

Eight helicopters were flying over orchards in that area.

Carlton Stewart, one of the major peach growers in that area and president of the National Peach Council, said there are about 25 growers and 3,000 acres of trees in that area. Stewart Fruit Co., Inc. has 400 acres of peach trees, 250 acres of which are at the fruit- bearing age.

Helicopters from Branson, Rolla, St. Louis, Memphis, Tenn., and Jonesboro and Paragould, Ark., began flying over the crops about 11 p.m. Thursday when temperatures began dropping into the low 20s.

They kept air circulating until about 6 or 7 a.m. today. Stewart explained that by using helicopters, temperatures in the peach orchards can be raised three to five degrees.

Helicopters were acquired primarily through agricultural flight services in various communities, Stewart explained.

The forecast tonight calls for winds which could be unfavorable to the use of helicopters, or could make them unnecessary because of the lessened frost factor. Stewart said the growers do expect to have helicopters in the air again Saturday night.

He explained that growers in the area do not yet know if, or to what extent, crops were damaged by any frost that may have settled

Man found shot to death

Henry Jack Kent, 58, of Route Three was found dead of a bullet wound in his home at 5:30 p.m. Thursday by his wife, Mrs. Velma Kent, after he apparently shot himself behind the right ear with a .22 - caliber single-shot rifle, Scott County Coroner Gene Nunnelee said today.

According to Nunnelee, Mrs. Kent found the body lying on one side across a pillow on the bed when she returned home from visiting her mother. He had been dead approximately two hours.

Kent reportedly had been despondent because of ill health.

Nunnelee said no inquest will be held.

Born Oct. 15, 1915 in Arkansas, he was the son of the late George and Maggie Ray Kent and had moved to the area from Houston, Tex., where he was employed in the park department before retirement.

On March 30, 1972, he married Velma Frances Johnson, who survives.

Also surviving is one son, Donald Lee Kent of Houston, Tex. one daughter, Mrs. Dora Mae Parker of Pasadena, Tex.; one stepson, Gary Johnson of Tacoma, Wash. one stepdaughter, Mrs. Larry Ankrom of Springfield; and five grandchildren.

The body was removed today from Nunnelee Funeral Chapel and taken to Forest Park Chapel in Houston, where services are scheduled on Saturday.

Burial will be in Forest Park Cemetery in Houston.

DAEOC gets $133,192

WASHINGTON, D. C. — U. S. Representative Bill D. Burlison (D.-Mo.) today announced that the Department of Labor has awarded a grant to the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation in Portageville, Mo. in the amount of $133,192.

Burlison explained that these funds will be utilized to aid 56 enrollees in an Operation Mainstream program. Mainstream gives work to older persons who have suffered chronic unemployment, he added.

The Congressman noted that the 10th District counties sharing in this grant are Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Stoddard and Scott.

Clerk says 8,500 registered voters not enough

NEW MADRID — Approximately 8,500 residents of New Madrid County are now registered to vote and while that number exceeds the 8,278 voters who cast ballots in the 1972 governor's race, County Clerk Jesse H. Wilkins states it is still far short of the number that could and should register.

Wilkins indicated that here-to-fore no one took the time to ascertain the number of residents that could have participated in an election — it was merely guesswork.

After determining the facts from the 1970 census report, Wilkins said he was quite surprised that the report revealed there are 13,573 residents in this county over the age of 21, plus 956 more are over 18 years and under 21 years, who can now qualify as voters, making a possible total of 14,529 voters in the county, provided they are registered.

The remaining 8,891 residents -- making up the population figure of 23,420-- are under 18 years of age and inelgible to participate in elections.

Wilkins said his office has made an earnest effort to register the residents and that the county had gone to considerable expense to make a registration crew available for registration in each community.

Despite the organizational help in the various cities and communities, some pleading and other persuasive actions, Wilkins said public apathy tends to show a lack of interest, especially when it is noted that some 41 per cent of the people are not registered.

"Future elections will perhaps follow the pattern of the past, with only around 8,000 of the population interested enough to express their opinion one way or another," predicted the county clerk, who is completing 16 years in that office.

"It would seem that with all the candidates in the city elections drumming up interest, the public's concern over inflation price controls or lack of controls, Watergate, welfare programs, taxation and loopholes, that the public would rush to register so they may express their desires through their favorite candidates and to serve their individual interests, but such interests have not as yet developed," he said.

"Apparently 41 per cent of the population has never participated in past elections and will not in the future, and if this be the case then there is really no point in registering those who refuse to vote. One thing for sure, if you are not registered you are not going to be able to vote," Wilkins concluded.

THE QUIET REVOLUTION

Following President Nixon's recent State of the Union address, a prominent black mayor said the President had "declared for all the world to see that black people are officially non-persons, not even to be addressed in a statement for the entire nation."

Mayor Richard Hatcher of Gary, Indiana, added that Mr. Nixon "spoke for about an hour and did not mention equal opportunity."

Well, so the President didn't refer specifically to black people in the address. Neither did he refer to white, red, yellow or purple people. The point is that he was addressing us as one union, not as special interest groups within that union. Issues affecting such groups, including blacks, were dealth with in the considerably longer written message accompanying the speech and given to members of Congress and the press.

At any rate, Mayor Hatcher's contention raises an interesting question: what happened to that black revolution that so recently was threatening to tear apart the social fabric of our nation? The answer is that the revolution is continuing quietly and very effectively where it really counts — the ballot box.

A total of 363 more blacks won political office in the South alone during last year's off-year elections, according to the nonpartisan Voter Education Project. There are now more than 1,000 elected blacks serving in public office throughout the South. And, in addition to Hatcher, they are joined by such prominent black officials in the North as the mayors of Los Angeles and Newark.

We won't argue that today every American has an equal opportunity for success. However, we will argue that during President Nixon's term of office, giant strides have been made in this direction. Federal outlays for civil rights enforcement, for example, have risen from $75 million in 1969 to $521 million in 1974.

Blacks and other minority groups, we believe, have made significant progress in recent years toward sharing fully in the American Dream. Perhaps that is one reason why this year's college students are streaking instead of rioting.

American taxpayers have paid $116 million in the last six years to make good on defaulting students under the federal loan program. But that is just the tip of the iceburg. Officials of the U. S. Office of Education expect a $31 - million deficit in the coming year and ever-greater losses in the futre. With Congress expected to "liberalize" the loan program in the months ahead, even that figure could skyrocket.

And speaking of this election year, there are two things Congress could do, says a Sikeston reader, that would re-elect them all.

"One is put the old holidays back where they found them, and the second is, cancel year- round daylight saving time."

THE GOVERNMENT EXPLOSION

It is fashionable to blame today's obvious and widespread public disenchantment with government in the United States on the "Watergate scandal." In fact, the trend toward a sharp decline in public confidence in government began well before "Watergate" and is the result of cumulative experience with evergrowing spending and ever- mounting problems. Our people are learning that government intervention does not solve most problems, but instead compounds them.

The increase in the cost and activity of government in the life and work of our country within recent memory is staggering, even frightening. In 1929, for example, the entire federal budget totalled less than $3 billion This year's budget is $300 billion, a 10,000 per cent increase. From 1929 to 1973, government grew 130 times as fast as population.

Even when inflation is fully taken into account, the figures remain appalling. In 1929 the federal government took 2.5 per cent of our Gross National Product while state and local government took an additional 7.4 per cent, a combined total for all government of about 10 cents on every dollar earned. Now the federal government takes 21 per cent of our Gross National Product and, when the cost of state and local government is added, one dollar in every three earned (32.2 per cent) goes to government.

What have we gained from all this? A nation confused, unsure of itslef, beset by troubles of every kind. The more tax money government spends, the worse conditions seem to become. It's time to start turning money back to the people so that they can solve their own problems.

IT'S YOUR TAXES THEY'RE SPENDING

$4,362

The price of your new car? It may be, but it's also what your family may have to pay to run the Federal Government next year.

The average taxpayer is probably unable to comprehend the size of the proposed $304.4 billion 1975 Federal Budget. But tell this same taxpayer such spending will cost his family -- and every household in the country -- $4,362 and this puts government spending in a different perspective.

The average American household's share in the 1975 Budget outlays is more than double the same cost 10 years earlier, a jump of 108 per cent to be exact. The largest share of this, $1,434, will be needed to provide income for other persons. This represents a 215 per cent rise during the decade.

Another growing facet of the Federal Budget is spending for Health Care, which is up 1,157 per cent in 10 years.

Not all categories of federal spending have increased. In fact, one of the most popular programs of the '60s, Space Research, now costs the average household $47 while in 1965 it came to $90.

One category that exists today more than absorbs the decline in Space Research. That is General Revenue Sharing, now amouning to $88 a year for the average household.

Some of the most expensive categories in the average family's $4,362 share of the proposed budget outlays -- and their changes over 10 years -- are:

Income Security — FY 1975 - $1,434; FY 1965 - $455. Growth: 215% plus.

National Defense — FY 1975 - $1,257, FY 1965 - $877. Growth: 43% plus.

Interest (Debt) — FY 1975 - $417, FY 1965 - $183. Growth: 128% plus

Health — FY 1975 - $377; FY 1965 - $30. Growth 1,157% plus

General Govt. — FY 1975 - $97; FY 1965 - $38. Growth: 155% plus

The last item shows how much even the cost of spending all this money keeps going up -- from $38 to $97 per family in 10 years.

EVEN ARAB OIL MIGHT NOT BE ENOUGH

Americans have been led to believe that if Arabian oil should again start flowing to the United States, our energy troubles would be over for a while.

If their demands are met, the Arab nations have said they would increase oil production from 7.5 million barrels a day to 20 million barrels.

From secret reports now made public, it appears that they can't produce more than 7.5 million barrels a day for a long time to come. The charge is made that the big American oil companies who developed the Arabian oil feidls have been draining the developed fields as fast as possible to get out as much oil as possible before the Arabian governments take over ownership and management of all oil fields as anticipated. Meantime, they have not developed the other potential oil fields in those nations. The result of this greed policy of the oil companies is that the Arabs can't produce what they promise, no matter how much they might want to do so.

A GREAT MAN

This week we born the passing of a great man. Charles Brasher was the personification of the Missouri State Chest Hospital.

Because he was once a patient at the then Sanatorium, he was far more sympathetic to the needs of the victims of tuberculosis and other lung diseases than the ordinary doctor.

He could appreciate the restorative value of a bouquet of fresh flowers at the bedside of someone facing a long hospital stay or the morale booster of a letter to loved ones written by a volunteer worker. Programs of this nature were kept, at his insistence, even though some considered them luxuries.

It was his foresight several years ago which instigated the change from a sanatorium to a hospital for the treatment of all lung and chest conditions. The change meant new life for the hospital at a time when many tuberculosis hospitals in the country were being closed down. Dr. Brasher envisioned the facility as eventually becoming a great cancer treatment center.

Dr. Brasher conquered both tuberculosis and alcoholism -- either of which have stopped an ordinary person -- to become superintendent and medical director of one of the most famous lung disease centers in the United States.

His philosophy of life was two-fold; faith in God, and the ability to laugh at oneself.

Dr. Brasher was scheduled for retirement in April. His co-workers and supporters had planned to honor him in several ways in return for the praise and honor which he strove to bestow upon them over the years.

We wonder whether Dr. Brasher would have been happy in retirement, for he was a doer. We suspect that rest and relaxation would have been a bore to him.

Dr. Brasher died with his boots on. That is how we shall always remember him.

We continue to hear how federal aid to education keeps interfering with local authorities by saying "do this or we'll take away your funds."

Title IX of the Education Amendments Act of 1972 prohibits sex discrimination for any educational program or activity receiving federal financial assistance.

Says the Wall Street Journal, "To the best of anyone's knowledge, no college sports programs receive federal funds. Moreover, at no time during congressional debate over the act was there any mention that its provisions applied to college athetics."

But, no matter the intent and purpose of the legislation, apparently the Department of Health, Welfare and Education, having their own interpretation, is busily concocting proposals to withhold funds from colleges that do not spend sports money equally on male and female activities.

Although there have been no edicts delivered, HEW has found that unnecessary in the past. The mere threat of withdrawing funds can change up most any old tradition. In fact, some schools are already convinced that HEW is prepared to take away all federal funds from any school that does not spend identical numbers of dollars on boy and girl intercollegiate, club and intramural athletics. Their fears could be well-founded.

It's difficult to imagine how it's possible to equalize football, for instance. If some other sport more suitable to women is to be promoted so that it would attract the crowds and revenues male football gets, what is it to be?

Borrowing from football's revenues to support women's sports would not only curtail football at many colleges, it could end it in others. Also, says the Journal, it could wipe out excess revenues some schools use to support less popular sports, such as tennis and golf, that both men and women play.

Even though the threat from HEW officials is just a whisper, it could do a lot of damage even if Congress would never permit exceeding its intent. But Congress has a habit of passing legislation, letting bureaucracy take over to administrate and then forgetting the whole thing.

SAFETY DISREGARDED HAULING MIGRANT WORKERS?

Tragic motor accidents involving large numbers of unorganized farm workers constitute one important reason why the efforts of the United Farm Workers union must succeed. In addition to fair wages and adequate fringe benefits, there is a need for strict safety standards to protect farm workers, both on the job and in transit to and from the fields.

Nineteen farm workers were killed and 28 others injured on Jan. 15 when a farm labor bus transporting them from Mexicali, Mexico, to a farm near Blythe, Calif., failed to negotiate a curve and turned over into a drainage ditch. According to a spokesman for the California Highway, the bodies were "stacked up like dominoes against each other toward the front of the bus."

At a funeral mass for the 19 dead workers, Cesar Chavez, president of the United Farm Workers, expressed both sorrow and anger over the tragedy and blamed it on "the greed of the big growers who do not care about the safety of the workers and who expose them to grave dangers when they transport them in wheeled coffins to the fields."

He noted that farm workers have suffered too many accidents "in the fields, on trucks, under machines, in buses." The criminal callousness of the big growers, Chavez said, is due to "a farm labor system that treats workers like agricultural implements — not human beings."

In Florida as well as in California, recent accidents bear out the truth of Chavez's statement. Sugar cane cutters brought in from Jamaica to work cane fields owned by the Gulf and Western Products Company near West Palm Beach have been involved in serious accidents on two occasions during the past three months. Thirty-six Jamaicans were injured in an accident near Belle Glade on Dec. 16; then, on Jan. 7, a seatless and windowless van packed with an estimated 130 Jamaican workers overturned in a ditch on the same road, killing one worker and injuring 86 others.

Workmen's compensation was not made available to the injured; not did the state police file charges against Gulf and Western, since the accidents occurred on a private road owned by the huge agricultural conglomerate. Moreover, Florida's Highway Patrol considered Gulf and Western exempt from the safety standards of the state's Migratory Carriers Law, which does not require the same standards for employers hauling their own workers.

Florida's laws and the application of them are clearly on the side of the powerful employers and oblivious of the rights of several hundred Jamaican men who leave their families for five months every year to work the sugar cane fields with their machetes and to live in huge, bleak dormitories furnished only with endless rows of double-decker bunks.

The terrible plight of farm workers is a grim reminder of the true cost of the food we eat and of the crucial need for nationwide support of a strong farm workers' union.

WINDFALL FOR ANTI-POLLUTIONISTS

The shortage of commercial fertilizer is developing into an unexpected windfall for those concerned with rural pollution.

Since commercial fertilizers came into general use, probably billions of tons of manure has largely gone to waste on the farms, because the commercial fertilizer is cheaper and less costly and bulky to handle. At the same time, the waste manure has been polluting creeks, ponds, lakes, rivers, underground water, and the air.

Now crop producers are turning to plans for utilizing all of the manure they can get, some even building "manure pits" near or under feeding areas, some dehydrating it for easier handling, some using it raw.

It is benefiting both the crop producer and the environment.

THAT RIGHT TURN ON RED

Gov. Bond is scheduled to sign on Thursday a new traffic law allowing a right turn on a red light.

But - motorists should be extremely careful. Don't barge through a red light.

You must first stop, then look for traffic coming from your left, and not go ahead until the traffic lane is clear.

This regulation is good, but it should be a national instead of a state law, to avoid dangerous confusion of motorists traveling in more than one state.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Nixon and Detente

WASHINGTON-- President Nixon is deeply conscious of the terrible power at his fingertips to plunge the world into a nuclear holocaust

"I could push this button right here and in 20 minutes 70 million Russians would be dead," he told a secret strategy session on March 8. "And 25 minutes later, 70 million Americans would be dead," he added.

He made the statement to dramatize the importance of the Soviet American detente. But it is a remark he has made in past private conversations, betraying a strange fascination with his control over the world's mightiest nuclear force.

He has also spoken admiringly of the cold courage that the late President Kennedy demonstrated during the nuclear showdown with Russia in 1962 over missile shipments to Cuba.

But on March 8, according to the confidential minutes, he spoke only of averting the massive casualties he could cause by pushing the nuclear button. We should "pray a lot," he told party leaders, and "do everything in our power to get along" with the Soviets.

The way to prevent a "longterm crisis," he said, was to avert a "shortterm crisis." One way this could be accomplished, he urged, was to grant them trade concessions.

"If we don't talk to them, if we don't trade with them, we're going to face enormous increases in defense expenditures," he warned.

The President argued that it is possible to deal with the Soviets without approving their ideology.

"I despise what happened to Solzhenitxyn," he said, referring to the banishment of the dissident Soviet writer Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn. "But he's in Paris rather than Siberia or six feet under. We're not approving anything about their system."

Senate Republican leader Hugh Schott quickly agreed. "We used to look for Reds under the bed," he said. "As I see it, we're moving to the living room, not into bed with them."

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger suggested a different analogy. "Presently," he said, "we have broken the ice. We're in a parlous period even so, but we should use the thaw to get good water from the spring."

STRANGE SWAP: The taxpayers are bailing out another giant corporation, Rockwell International, which had been stuck with a lavish, out- of- the- way building it couldn't use.

Now the General Services Administration has agreed to take over the unoccupied building in exchange for government- owned property, which the corporation is leasing but would like to acquire.

The $20 million facility, which the taxpayers are about to take off Rockwell's hands, is located about 40 miles outside of Los Angeles. It is a magnificent building, nestled in the rolling hills of Laguna Niguel, Calif.

Because of a cutback in military electronics procurement, however, it has remained empty since its completion in 1971. Quite understandably, Rockwell officials have been eager to unload the white elephant, which has cost the company more than $1 million a year merely to maintain.

About a year ago, GSA advised Congress of its intention to exchange three "surplus" facilities in Los Angeles for the Laguna Niguel building. The appraisers determined the value of the swapped properties was approximately the same.

The deal would have gone through a month later, except for the strong opposition of Rep. Jack Brooks D-Tex., whose Government Operations subcommittee doggedly monitors GSA.

Brooks' year- long probe has determined that GSA has actually received reservations for only about half of the 750,000 square feet in the huge Rockwell plant. And some of those requests, Brooks felt, were suspect.

The President's San Clemente estate, for example, is only about 10 miles away and already about 20,000 square feet have been designated as a "temporary presidential documents storage area." But most of the government officials, who eventually will inhabit the building, live 30 to 40 miles away in the Los Angeles area. GSA officials vigorously deny that the $20 million building was purchased more for the convenience of President Nixon than the government employes it is supposed to house.

"The GSA has misled Congress and the public about the need for this space," Brooks told us, "in an effort to justify the acquisition." He complained that "there is no public transportation, no low or middle income housing in the area, and it is going to cost the government millions to provide these services and to move government agencies" to Laguna Niguel.

GSA boss Arthur Sampson told us, in rebuttal that the acquisition of the Rockwell facility was "a once- in- a- lifetime opportunity to get (the space) at half price." He said "action plans" would be formulated to provide housing and transportation.

He made no effort to conceal his feelings toward Brooks. "I'm tired of being nice to ... our dear old friend" on Capitol Hill Sampson stated, complaining that Brooks had delayed the acquisition of the facility for almost a year.

Inside Labor

Pickets and Power:
General Strikes Sweep Across World

WASHINGTON-- From strange boulevards in distant lands to familiar streets of our home cities pickets have just proven labor's power to topple a government, bankrupt a nation and deactivate a city. Some pickets were Communist-directed. But most were the placard carriers of traditional union chiefs skillfully weaving industrial power with political power.

From Addis Ababa's Churchill Road to London town's Trafalgar Square to San Francisco's Market Street and Bay, labor leaders, in the past few weeks, have done what comes naturally. And few observers have analyzed the phenomena. Nor have many seen the implications to the citizenry, to political leaders and even to national labor leaders themselves.

At what point does the ever- accumulating power of organized labor's rank and file and its pressure on its chiefs become an inherent danger to any nation?

This strength gathers swiftly. Some nine years ago, for example, I walked down Churchill Road in Ethiopia's Addis Ababa to the newly founded Confederation of Ehtiopian Labor Unions (CELU). It had been launched by the King of Kings himself-- under pressure from our government and with the help of the AFL- CIO and some German unions.

As I recall, I found a cardboard with "CELO" handprinted on it, attached to a door. Inside were two typewriters (one a gift from the democratic "West," the other from Communist Czechoslovakia), a secretary, an official and several desks. CELU had virtually no membership. But it had Emperor Haile Selassie's reluctant blessing.

This past March 7, less than a decade later, CELU pulled a four- day general strike. Its 85,000 members quit at a signal from a much more opulent headquarters than the one I visited.

Transport stopped. Trucks did not roll. Banks were affected. Tourism was hurt when hotel staffs walked out. The tobacco industry was crippled. Airports were closed when the air traffic controller struck. Food distribution crept. Buses came infrequently, if at all.

It would be unethical and unfair to ignore the bitter grievances and low wages of the Ethiopian workers. But, equally, it would be dangerous to ignore the inherent power displayed by the militant labor leaders who are pushing around the moderate CELU officials.

"We are stronger even than the army," said one top general strike leader.

There's the crux of picket power. It's today's version of what a long- forgotten American labor leader by name of John L. Lewis said-- "You can't dig coal with bayonets."

But you can shut down a nation with a sign- toting picket as a symbol of organized labor led by the wrong men, the ambitious or the amateurs.

And closer to home culturally and politically, there is the now tortured British government. Laborite Prime Minister Harold Wilson came to power after the Communist-dominated coal diggers simply willed the end of the Conservative administration. The coal miners simply blockaded the pits and power stations.

Mr. Wilson himself is the authority for the amazing fact that since last November the coal conflict and the curtailment of industry by the enforced three- day week actually cost his nation well over $19 billion. This awesome figure doesn't include the additional losses springing from the rail and other stoppages. One estimate puts it all at some $25 billion. And that in some five months.

Towards the strike's end the miners were attempting to push the Trades Union Congress (counterpart of the AFL- CIO) into a massive general strike to paralyze Britain. This failed. But the Heath government was toppled. This is power indeed. And the miner's grievances don't negate the implications of such raw strength.

At one point the National Union of Mineworkers' powerful influential leader, a self- avowed Communist reportedly a member of the party's politburo, said he would attempt to prevent the use of the British army if it sought to protect that kingdom's vital pits.

So we come now to San Francisco. Recently, for nine days much of this lovely city was semi- paralyzed. Led by the Service Employes union, municipal workers crippled hospitals and health services, snarled public transit, tied up 350,000 commuters seeking to get to their daily bread, and reverted to the tactic of shutting down sewage-processing plants.

Thus hundreds of millions of gallons of raw sewage (as happened in New York once) poured into the bay, the ocean and onto some of the beaches. Further, the strikers threatened to shut down the entire critical port and the water supply mechanism. During most of the stoppage they defied the courts. They were supported by the city central labor council and the state labor organizations. Again-- there were grievances. Again-- there was the demonstration of the power of an organized rank and file.

We know who leads these unions now in lands across the world-- and here at home. But what of tomorrow? In whose hands will such absolute power rest?

A child's 'cuteness' may be inexperience

By SHAREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economist

You hear a child cry outside the church or meeting. A child of 7 or 8 trips, falls and picks herself up. Typically adults' reactions are indulgent smiles and other expressions of "Isn't that cute?" One gets the distinct feeling that the child's pain or embarrassment isn't real. Children are regarded as actors whose feelings, pains or worries aren't real or serious, according to author — John Holt.

He says this is part of the cuteness syndrome. Much of what we respond to in children as "cute" is really their weakness and littleness. So we think they're cute partly because they're little, innocent and can do much less than we can as adults.

But look at this from a child's viewpoint. They don't consider it cute or enjoyable to be powerless and always having to give way to the real needs of adult- sized people. Giving way might range from putting up with hugs and kisses from each and every relative to not crying in public. Their innocence, to children, is like inexperience and ignorance. They want to know what's going on and why and aren't sentimental about it at all.

When we label only children as innocent, it seems to say they're too unaware or maybe even dumb to know better. Holt says innocence is hope, trust, confidence, the feeling that the world is open and that life has many possibilities. These qualities are valuable in everyone, so when we link them wistfully to childhood only, it reveals our sense of hopelessness.

Learning to walk illustrates another symptom of our cuteness affliction. Infants are clumsy as they work so hard at learning to walk. Most of us would give up anything that we do as badly as new walkers do, but they just keep on. Their determination, courage and pleasure in learning should be what we respond to, not their littleness or tumbles or quick plops on the floor. This is their work they are doing for themselves, not to please us.

Viewing children as "help objects" means we feel kids are cutest when they're halpless and dependent because it makes us feel needed and competent. Responding to their cute helplessness and assumed lack of any real problems or abilities exploits them and discourages their efforts. They in turn learn to exploit our need for "cutesy" behavior to gain approval and special favors or treatment.

In summary, we should try to get out of the habit of seeing little children as "cute" and regarding their energy, enthusiasm, resourcefulness, curiosity, trust, forgiving nature, great capacity for delight, joy and sorrow and their eager involvement in life as something big people outgrow.

VD victims must name all contacts

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with your advice to the East Coaster who had a bad case of VD. However, as a medical officer of a health department, I think you should make it clear that most local departments have the authority to enforce examination of friends with whom the infected person has been intimate.

Only when people realize the importance of naming ALL their contacts do we stand a reasonable chance of gaining control over VD, which has now reached epidemic proportions. Please, Ann, print this letter and urge cooperation. It is desperately needed. -- Owen Sound, Ont.

Dear O.S.: I have repeatedly urged my readers who learn they have VD to cooperate with the health authorities and reveal the names of everyone with whom they have been intimate. Thank you for reminding me to do so again.

VD, unless treated, can cause serious and permanent damage --even death. Moreover, an infected person who is unaware of it can spread the disease to an alarming number of unsuspecting victims.

I repeat for the umpteenth time. If anyone who reads this column suspects that he or she has VD, please go to your city or county health department at once. You will be examined and, if necessary, treated without charge. Your parents will not be notified, regardless of your age. (Thank the good Lord THAT law has been changed.) And, when the health officer askes you to name your contacts, level with him. This is not finking on your friends. In fact, you will be doing them an enormous favor.

Dear Ann Landers: I noted with interest that when a reader asked you flat -out how you felt about beiing called "Ms." you made it abundantly clear that you didn't care for the handle.

A recent poll revealed that over 75 per cent of the women between 20 and 40 who were asked the same question didn't wish to be called "Ms." either. So what's new? Any polltaker should know that a Miss who becomes a Mrs. has something that a Ms. probably does NOT have --and that's a husband. --Call Me Madame

Dear Madame: Thanks for the fill- in. I didn't mean to imply that I see anything wrong with wanting to be called "Ms." I believe if a woman signs herself "Ms." she should be addressed that way --but not until or unless.

Dear Ann Landers: For 22 years we've financed everything under the sun for my in -laws. They have never had the decency to say "the check arrived" --much less "thank you ."

There are nine children in the family and my husband has assumed some reponsibility for all of them. He has even gone to the bank and borrowed money (on which he has to pay interest) to help them out.

From the day we married, his parents have had their hands in my husband's pockets. I am sick to death of it but he says he can't refuse them. His father has a stroke recently and when he dies, my husband's unearned guilt will probably triple and his mother will lean on him even more.

I know they are all sick, but what can I do? If his mother would just tell him she loves him it would help, but she's a cold fish and will never change.

If you print this you will make me very happy. And I'll see to it that all twelve of them get a framed copy. -- Outnumbered

Dear Out: Here it is. Go get the frames.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting --What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346 , Ciicago, Ill. 60654, enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self -addressed envelope.

Dogwood festival scheduled

CHARLESTON — The Sixth Annual Dogwood - Azalea Festival has been scheduled for the weekend of April 20-21. The dates were selected by the Mollie French Garden Club as the time when the abundance of dogwood trees, azaleas and other flowering shrubs in the city will be most beautiful.

Directed tours, showing the most outstanding flowering displays, will be supervised by the Mollie French Garden Club. Fish and chicken dinners, furnished by the Junior Study Club, will be available from 11 a.m. Sunday throughout the afternoon in the E. Charles Rolwing Park, where most of the activities will be centered.

Among the other highlights will be a parade, antique cars and numerous booths featuring games, crafts and an art show.

The annual event is sponsored by the community Betterment Committee through the Chamber of Commerce.

Bulldogs return 12 lettermen

If experience counts for anything, and in high school athletics it usually does, the Sikeston Bulldogs should be well set up for the season which begins for them on Monday. When the game gets underway, the Bulldogs will have at least three lettermen from last year's 8-3 squad sitting on the bench. In all, 12 sport a big red S on their jackets or sweaters. They are:

JOHN LEIBLE, a 6-foot-2 senior catcher who made All-District as a sophomore and a junior. Leible, an outstanding defensive catcher, has an above average arm and averages of .390 and .424 in his first two years. John, of course, will start behind the plate on Monday barring the unforseen.

JIM SAULTER is another senior starter from last year's semi-successful team. Jim, an acceptable defensive first baseman with long arms because of his 6-foot-3 height, has dropped some weight and is obviously quicker in the field and going down the first base line. His averages of .235 and .241 are not exceptional, but big Jim is a feared powerhitter who has yet to hit his stride.

BILL SCHATZLEY is the infield leader for Sikeston. After subbing his entire sophomore season, Bill surprised everyone by taking command of the second base post early and finishing the season with an eye-popping .370 average. Schatzley has good range at second base and has greatly improved his work on the double- play pivot.

RICK EISENBACH had his troubles at short last year. After hitting .320 and making a single error as a sophomore - a feat that earned him all-state honorable mention - Rick's entire game fell off last year. His average dropped to .186 and the cat- quick infielder made eight errors, most of them throwing errors. So far in practices the talented athlete has shown indications that he is ready to return to his 1972 form. If he does, Eisenbach could be the key to a good Bulldogs season.

KENNY STOKES is a coach's dream. Possessing one of the strongest arms on the team, Kenny has pitched well for the last two years. He led the team in strikeouts last year, racking up 15 against Charleston. With a 3-0 record as a freshman and 2-1 as a sophomore, Stokes would be the ace of most other high school pitching staffs in the area. However, he also carries a big bat. Against top competition the 5-foot 11 junior hit .391 his freshman year and .400 as a sophomore. This season Stokes takes his talents to third base, when he's not pitching, a position he played for the last half of last year.

GREG COLWICK will probably move to left field this year after making the All-State team (honorable mention) his first two years in center. Greg's hitting fell off last year, his average tumbling to .282 after a .340 sophomore year, but his fine defense didn't suffer. Blessed with the ability to get a good jump on the ball along with adequate speed, Colwick will team with centerfielder Donmy Taylor to roam the spacious pastures of Sikeston's V. F. W. ballpark.

Moving to centerfield this year is DONNY TAYLOR. Possessor of a strong throwing arm, Taylor is also an acceptable catcher. But, considering the depth back there, he will probably see all his action in center. After riding the bench as a sophomore, Donny came on with a strong second half last year to lead the team in extra basehits and to finish with a .353 batting mark.

MITCHELL WALKER is one of four lettermen on the pitching staff. Walker, who will probably fill in at times on the infield and outfield, has one of the best career ERA's in the district. Allowing only two earned runs in two years, Mitch's total ERA is 0.14, an outstanding figure to go with his 8-1 career won- lost mark. In his two years of action, Walker has also proved he can swing the bat with averages of .364 and .375.

Joining Walker and Stokes in the starting rotation is curveballing RICHARD BLANKENSHIP. The bender that Rich throws has made many a good hitter look foolish. Blankenship, 3-0 last year after missing most of the year with mononucleosis, has averaged more than a strikeout per inning, as have Stokes and Walker. The 5-foot- 10 hurler complied a respectable .250 batting mark last year to go with his 2.25 ERA.

BRUCE LAWRENCE will likely play rightfield in the season's first game. Although Bruce didn't hit much last year, he did hit nearly .500 for the Senior Babe Ruth district champions and is a good, solid lefthanded hitter as well as being one of the fastest Bulldogs.

CHARLIE MILLER will again ride the bench and this is getting to be old hat for Charlie. No speed demon, Charlie none - the - less would be starting behind the plate for almost any other area high school. Choo-choo hit .211 as a freshman and .333 as a junior, both in reserve roles. His ability to hit is unquestioned and he has a good throwing arm, but John Leible will probably again prove to be too big of an obstacle for the junior receiver. You can bet, however, that Miller will see action somewhere, before the year is over.

Lefthander RICK LOVE will also pitch for Sikeston this year. Another senior, Love has battled control for two years and if he can throw the ball over the plate, his lefthandedness will likely get him some action. Rick had no record last year and an ERA of 3.94.

Others have come through in practices so far and it appears that Sikeston will have the strongest bench it has ever possessed. A freshman, David Shell, has been most impressive as a catcher. Along with Leible, he is a rarity — a fleet- footed catcher. David has a good arm and should hit well if he gets a chance. Dale Deal will join Lawrence as the infield fillin. Deal is good defensively everywhere on the infield and is among the fastest Bulldogs. His bat is the only question mark. Kevin Waters, a senior who transferred to Sikeston last year, is an outfield reserve who can run and cover territory. Lance Hesselrode is another outfield reserve and Dwayne Selph give the Bulldogs infield insurance with quickness and a strong arm.

The Bulldogs are fast, should have good hitting and have so many pitchers they don't know what to do with them all. However when it comes to state competition, the ball sometimes takes funny hops and even good teams don't always win. These talented young men who have kept on plugging away feel that maybe this year is their year. They've been wrong twice.

Blue in top form

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vida Blue, an American League Cy Young Award winner who has been trying since 1971 to prove it wasn't a fluke, is picking up where he left off last year in search of his rookie form.

Blue went to the mound in the sixth inning and retired 12 straight batters to lead the world champion Oakland A's to a 7-4 exhibition baseball victory over Milwaukee Thursday.

Blue, who had an off season in 1972 after a long hold out over his contract, fanned three batters in his last four innings on the hill. Tim Hosley and Bill North gave the A's the runs they needed with a two-run homer each.

In other exhibition games, Pittsburgh split its squad to take a 7-4 victory over the New York Yankees and drop a 10-9 decision to Kansas City, Houston edged Atlanta 6-5 in 12 innings, Boston got by Montreal 7-6 in 10 innings, St. Louis shutout Detroit 2-0, Philadelphia defeated Cincinnati 5-3, Minnesota eked out a 7-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox, San Francisco blanked Cleveland 5-0, the Chicago Cubs beat San Diego 98, and Los Angeles defeated Baltimore 3-2.

Dave Parker, an outfielder who's playing first base for the injured Bob Robertson, hit two solo home runs and a triple to pace the Pirates by the Yankees. Ken Brett, who gave up one run in the second and three in the third, was credited with the victory for seven innings on the mound.

In the other half of the Pirate's twin bill, Kansas City's rookie outfielder, Al Cowens, singled in a run in the ninth inning to give the Royals a onerun victory.

Milt May singled with two outs to give Houston a 12-inning decision over Atlanta in another cliff hanger.

Craig Caskey's wild pitch in the 10th inning allowed Dick McAuliffe to score from third, lifting the Red Sox over Montreal.

Mike Garman threw five innings, allowing only one hit, and three Cardinal pitchers combined to shut out Detroit on just four hits.

Mike Anderson accounted for three of Philadelphia's runs with a homer in the fourth inning.

Minnesota got a clutch homer from Tony Oliva in the seventh inning, breaking open a tie game, and then held on to beat the White Sox.

Tom Bradley and Jim Willoughby allowed seven hits between them for the shutout and Cleveland gave up the two winning runs — both unearned — in the second inning on an error by Dwain Anderson.

John Grubb and Willie McCovey both committed eighth-inning errors that led to four Chicago runs, and Jose Cardenal hit a three-run homer to give the Cubs their close decision.

Jerry Royster smacked a two-run double in the ninth inning that lifted the Dodgers from a 2-1 deficit for the victory.

Cards look good

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals say they won't carry more than 11 pitchers when the National League season opens next month, but tall right-hander Mike Garman isn't worrying.

The 24-year-old Garman, whom the Rebirds acquired in December from the Boston Red Sox in a six-player trade, Thursday solidified his position with five strong innings in a 2-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

"I'm getting stronger each time out," said Garman, who permitted only Ben Ogilvie's fourth-inning single. "I can do more things. I had a good curve today."

While Garman was impressive, so were ex-Red Sox righthander Ken Tatum and veteran Orlando Pena, who yielded only three hits the final four innings.

The Cards scored the only run they needed when Ken Reitz doubled and Lou Brock followed with a triple.

Another highlight for the Cards, who boosted their Grapefruit League record to 8-4 ahead of a game today with the New York Mets, was Jose Cruz' production of three hits.

Cruz, in a bid to nail down a position along with outfielders Brock, Reggie Smith and Bake McBride, raised his spring batting average to .363.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Thursday's Daily Standard that David Shell recorded Sikeston's only first place in the junior high track meet at Kennett early this week. It should have been Mike Shell.

ST. LOUIS (AP)— The St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League have awarded St. Louis University star John Nestic a five- game trial with their Denver Spurs farm club of the Western Hockey League.

The 5- foot- 7, 170- pound Nestic last week concluded a 141- game collegiate career with 141 goals and 268 points, ranking third on the all- time collegiate scoring list.

Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

All that remains of the 1973-74 Southeast Missouri high school basketball season is the naming of The Daily Standard's all star and all academic teams! Well ... at least that's what I thought.

I had hoped that all the controversy that had been stirred by the Kelly-- Lilbourn first round class AA state tournament game had died down, but apparently it hasn't.

Everyone recalls the one point decision of the Panthers, but what normally comes to mind when the game is mentioned is the letters of protest about the officiating from Kelly fans.

This scribe could have started it all with his "cheap" foul remarks in reporting the game ... If so, we certainly do regret it.

I have numerous friends in both communities and hate to take sides, but it seems that I did in reporting the contest.

But my reference to the cheap fouls wasn't meant to reflect upon a bad game of officiaiting, it was mostly made to agree with some of the fans protest of two, maybe three calls.

The letters of protest from fans have attacked two of the district's finest officials ... Buddy Godwin and Paul Hawkins. Buddy is a personal friend of mine and I would bet my life that he wouldn't personally throw a game or take a grudge out on one athelete. It's not like him.

I know many of you will say that I'm just trying to smooth things over ... Maybe I am, but it hurts me to think that one game has stirred so much hatred and discontent ... Maybe it would be best to drop all sporting events in high school if it is going to cause another controversy as the one now going on.

Let's forget the past and look toward a better tomorrow...

Mrs. Donald Beggs letter to the editor in Thursday's edition of The Daily Standard, referring to the above mentioned controversy, brought out one point of interest to this scribe.

It was mentioned that Mr. Thurston Hill, superintendent of Dexter schools and member of the board of directors of the Missouri State High School Activities Association, made the selection of the officials to call the state games from our district.

We're not sure if he does, but we feel that many fine young officials are overlooked each season when the state tournament rolls around. And this could be one of the reasons that most of the new, young officials don't stay long as they seem to be overlooked by the 'higher ups'.

Hill has been on the board some 20 years ... and this is too long for one man to represent an area. New blood makes for a better organizatin.

We have caught comments from area administrators of an attempt to unseat him ...

If the administrators select the officials for regional and state tournament games ... It might be wise for some of them to attend some of the games and watch some of the referees work ... rather than take someone elses word for it.

One example of a bad selection of officials was in the state tournaments, where everybody had gripes. I know for a fact that we had at least eight men from the Bootheel who could have been more consistant in their calls than the group that called the Class A, AA, AAA and AAAA event.

If I had to rate the officials calling in the state tournament, only about two would pass ... It's time to take a look at the selection process and rate them more accurately.

But officiating is a tough job, you get very few (if any) pats on the back ... but there is always somebody ready to attack you ... that's why I got out of it.

Everyone should try it one season Even some of those avid female fans.

A good friend of mine and many area fans and coaches, M. M. McMahon, came up with a great idea on the state tournament officiating setup. He had always asked for obtaining officiating partners to work the games, instead of getting one official from here and another from St. Louis or another part of the state. This plan was used one year in the state event and everything went smoothly, but was abandoned after that. This plan needs to be reviewed!!!

Now I've had my say ... Let the letters fly.

But remember ... the more you stir it, the worse it smells.

Lilbourn in finals

VANDUSER — A pair of star studded independent basketball teams, Essex and Lilbourn, collide for the championship of the Vanduser Men's independent basketball tournament. Essex made the finals via a 116-85 romp of Security National Bank and Lilbourn edged out the host 106-100.

Former Missouri University great, Don Tomlinson, dumped in 30 points while former Arkansas State standout Harold Persful added 28 and Bill Kelley contributed 24 to serve up the knockout punch for Essex. Morris Karnes paced the bank's offense with 20 markers.

Sharp shooting Pat McClarty drilled in 33 points to pace Lilbourn's move into the finals and got 21 and 19 point backing from Alan Mitchell and David McClarty. David Pobst hit 25 for Vanduser's top mark.

Tonight's title bout will be followed by a grudge match between Security National and Vanduser around 9 p.m.

Moberly defeats Vincennes

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Moberly, Mo., meets Chipola, Fla., and defending champion Mercer County of Trenton, N.J., takes on Northeastern Oklahoma Friday night in semifinals of the National Junior College Basketball Tournament.

Moberly kept its title hopes alive with a 63-59 squeaker over three-time national champion Vincennes, Ind., Thursday night in a game that was in doubt until the final six seconds.

Chipola rolled over frigid New York Community College 73-55 in Thursday night's other game.

In loser's bracket games Friday, Hill of Hillsboro, Tex., meets Copiah-Lincoln of Wesson, Miss., at noon, San Jacinto, Tex., faces Arizona Western of Yuma at 1:45 and Vincennes meets New York Community College at 3:30.

John Gordon led Moberly scorers with 20 points. Rickey Green was high for Vincennes with 17. Three of those came with less than two minutes to play—pulling the Indiana team to within two, 59-57.

Albert Gardner led Chipola with 28 points. Nestor Serrano had 14 to lead NYCCC scorers.

In earlier games Thursday, Copiah-Lincoln sent Niagara of New York home 106-92; Arizona Western Eliminated Alexander City, Ala., 84-75; and Grand View of Iowa ousted Northeastern Colo., 70-59.

Littell among trims

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — The Kansas City Royals have announced the names of 10 players who are being trimmed from their squad and the sale of one player, leaving the baseball club with 33 men on the roster.

Eight more will have to be cut from the squad before opening day.

Outfielder Steve Hovley, used sparingly, was sold to Baltimore.

Eight of the players were scheduled to go to Sarasota, Fla., after today's split squad exhibitions for reassignment. They are pitchers Norm Angelini, Dennis Leonard and Mark Littell, infielders George Brett, Buddy Hunger and Jamie Quirk, catcher John Wathan and outfielder Keith Marshall.

Two pitchers, Paul Pelz and Randy Hammon, will remain with the major league team until Monday and then will go to the minor league base at Sarasota for reassignment.

THE BIBLE

127. The Ark is Returned

During the seven months the Ark of the Covenant remained in the Philistine nation, the Lord plagued the cities of Ashdod, Gath, and Ekron where the Philistines attempted to keep the Ark. The plagues were so severe that the five leaders decided to return the Ark to Israel.

The Philistine diviners advised that a guilt offering of five golden emerods and five golden mice (symbols of the plague) be placed inside the Ark. Further, they advised that a new cart should be built for it, and that two cows with young calves which had never been yoked to a cart should be allowed to pull the Ark wherever they would — probably to their new calves. Surprisingly, the animals pulled the cart bearing the Ark directly to Beth-shemesh, "And the cart came into the field of Joshua...and they clave the wood of the cart, and offered the kine a burnt offering unto the Lord." (I Samuel 6:14)

However, the Lord slew 70 of the men of Beth-shemesh because they looked into the Ark. The people mourned, "...Who is able to stand before this holy Lord God? And to whom shall he go up from us?" (I Samuel 6:20)

Then they sent messengers to Kirjath-jearim to ask the people there to come and receive the Ark.

The cost of running your home ballooning?

See Ætna about a down-to-earth saving.

Fuel oil is up. Food bills are up. Taxes are up. But your Ætna Life & Casualty agent can tell you about some costs that could come down. He can tell you how you might save up to 20% on your homeowners policy. Because if your home qualifies for our new Ætna Preferred Homeowners Policy, that's exactly what can happen.

More good news: the requirements are easy. So long as the house you own is in Missouri, was built in the last twenty-five years, and has a replacement value between $15,000 and $60,000 you've already met the major requirements. Discounts for renters, too.

Why not look up your nearest Ætna agent? You'll find him in the Yellow Pages. Whether you own or rent, chances are he can show you in black and white why we're not your average insurance company.

The pretzel was invented by Charlemagne, King of the Franks and first Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. When he subdued the heathen Saxons more than eleven centuries ago, he forced them to bake the sign of the cross into all their bread and pastries in token of their conversion to Christianity. Thus the pretzel was born. Down to our time it had to be twisted by hand. But just a few years ago high speed machines were developed to loop and tie the dough into a perfect product of the pretzel maker's art. Today the pretzel not only comes in all sizes of the traditional shape but comes in circles, twists,and sticks of all sizes.

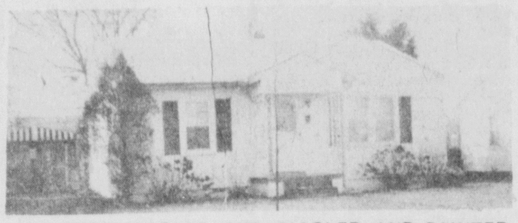
FRESH AS THE SUMMER BREEZES ... is this nice and well kept home, located in Miner. It features two large bedrooms, living room, kitchen with built-in stove, den, Utility room, carport, central heat & a/conditioning ... Breezes my way you'll be glad you did ... $17,500.00



I'VE BEEN RIGGLED AND GIGGLED AND PAINTED INSIDE by the carpenter's brigade. I tell you the things we homes go through to keep young looking, sometimes makes me wonder if its worth it. However, I must admit that my 2 bedrooms give a more cozy and refreshing look and my kitchen has that fresh clean smell and I love that new coat that my cabinets got, the color was so becoming to my snack bar. The big living room looks so nice with my fresh cleaned carpet. My bath has a shower over the tub and all rooms are nice size with roomy closets. I have a screened in patio and a nice work shop. Also central heating. NOW we homes don't like to sound as though we're bragging, but I'm about the cutest thing you'll find for $13,900.00... 319 Virginia

MISS FLORIDA from WEST ACRES ... bids you hello and welcome to one of the fastest moving areas around. Bond set for Hannibal man; hearing March 28

BLOOMFIELD — Bond was set at $2,500 for Kenneth Wayne Barnes, 28, of Hannibal after he appeared in Magistrate Court before Judge Koss W. Blomeyer.

Robert Phillips, 21, and Donald Phillips, 18, of Fisk, were bound over to Circuit Court following testimony in a preliminary hearing. MUSICIAN JOHN CACAVAS STRIKES RIGHT NOTE WITH TELLY SAVALAS

Someone once said that life is a series of initiations. Whatever your past experience, there is always a new area to conquer in which you are a beginner.

John Cacavas, who composes, conducts and arranges the music for the majority of the "Kojak" episodes broadcast Wednesdays (10:00- 11:00 PM, EDT) on the CBS Television Network, is well aware of this.

After having established himself in New York City in all areas of music, including writing an oratorio, at age 21, for the NBC Symphony Orchestra, and composing many published works for concert band, marching band, orchestra and choir, as well as for television commercials, recording stars and live television shows, Cavacas decided he wanted to write for films. However, he found the opportunity lacking in the United States.

"I decided to move to London" Cacavas says, "because there seemed to be more opportunity there."

His assumption was correct. He quickly found himself very much in demand, and soon scored the music for five films, two of which starred Telly Savalas, star of the "Kojak" series.

That association proved beneficial to both men. Upon learning of Cacavas' background, Savalas expressed his unfulfilled desire to sing. Cacavas agreed to help. Savalas' first album thus far has been released only in Europe, where it has been very popular.

Savalas returned the favor by introducing Cacavas to several motion picture and television producers in Hollywood. "A friend can open some doors for you," Cacavas notes, "but you're on your own after that."

NBC DOUBLE FEATURE NIGHT AT THE MOVIES: "The Rockford Files" and "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn"- James Garner stars as the head of an agency investigating cases "closed" by the police department; and Cliff Robertson and Diane Baker star in the drama of a family waging a battle against poverty and alcohol.

James Garner, as he investigates a death to determine whether it was homicide, and Cliff Robertson and Diane Baker, battling poverty with their family, star in two 90-minute films, "The Rockford Files" and "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," to be colorcast on "NBC Double Feature Night at the Movies" Wednesday, March 27 (7- 10 p.m. DST), on the NBC Television Network.

Co- starring in "The Rockford Files," starting at 8 p.m. NYT, are Lindsay Wagner, William Smith, Robert Donley, Joe Santos, Nita Talbot, Stuart Margolin, Bill Mumy and Michael Lerner.

Co- starring in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," starting at 9:30 p.m. NYT, are Nancy Malone, James Olson, Pamela Ferdin and Michael Wixted.

In "The Rockford Files," Jim Rockford (James Garner), as head of an agency which investigates cases that are "closed" by the police is approached by a young woman, Sara Butler (Miss Wagner), to find out whether her father (Bill Quinn) was slain or committed suicide. With a lead from Sara's young brother Nick (Bill Mumy), Rockford looks into Butler's death and is intrigued enough by what he learns to proceed with the investigation.

The case becomes more complex when in the process of investigating, Rockford the hunter, becomes the hunted.

In "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," a family of four fights poverty and alcohol: the mother scrubbing floors to put food on the table; the father fighting his failures with drink and dreams.

Katie Nolan's (Miss Baker) love for her husband, Johnny (Robertson), is true but sorely tested when she tries to feed and clothe daughter Francie, 12 (Miss Ferdin), and son Neely, 11 (Wixted), while Johnny tries to get an occasional night's work as a waiter.

Katie's often- married sister, "Sissy" (Miss Malone), tries to help, but her questionable marriage arrangements cause Katie much grief. A hand of friendship is extended to Katie by Officer McShane (Olson), who tries to suppress his feelings for her because of her love for her husband.

The central character is Francie, whose love for her father blinds her to his weaknesses. These are hard times prior to World War I and the old Brooklyn tenements are at their worst. Francie clings to one thing which allows her dreams to soar beyond the scars of reality-- a large tree which grows just outside their apartment.

DINAH SHORE
Star of "Dinah's Place"
Mondays- Fridays, NBC Television Network
(In Color, 9- 9:30 a.m.)

Dinah Shore, in her fourth season as star of the successful daytime series "Dinah's Place," on the NBC Television Network, has come a long way from her days as Frances Rose Shore, cheerleader at Hume Fogg High School in Nashville, Tenn.

While in college at Vanderbilt University (Nashville), Dinah became interested in singing. In her sophomore year she had her own 15- minute radio show on WSM, Nashville. She opened her broadcasts with the song "Dinah" and used the same song in an audition for disc jockey Martin Block several years later. He called her "Dinah" because he couldn't remember "Frances." She has used the name since.

After receiving her BA degree in sociology, Dinah tackled New York and she teamed with another young singer, Frank Sinatra, on radio station WNEW. A two- year engagement at the Strand Theatre followed. Her work impressed bandleader Xavier Cugat, for whom she made her first recordings.

Movie roles also came her way and she appeared in "Thank Your Lucky Stars," "Up in Arms," "Belle of the Yukon, "Follow the Boys," "Till the Clouds Roll By" and "Aaron Slick From Punkin' Crick."

In 1951, she launched her own half- hour television show. "The Dinah Shore Show" was expanded to an hour program in 1956
